

NAZIS MASS TROOPS ON THREE BORDERS

J. HAM LEWIS DIES AT 72 IN CAPITAL OF HEART ATTACK

Senate Democratic Whip Succumbs Six Hours After Returning From Chicago Home by Train.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—(AP)—Senator James Hamilton Lewis, Democrat, Illinois, who had been stevedore, soldier and statesman but liked most to be a gentleman of the old school, died unexpectedly tonight of a heart ailment.

The 72-year-old senator was as well known for his Chesterfieldian manners, his immaculate attire and his pink whiskers as for any of the farflung adventures in his busy life.

He said last year he would have retired from the senate, where he held the post of Democratic "whip," except for his desire to help Mr. Roosevelt.

Lewis had been in poor health for several years. He was stricken with pneumonia on a trip to Russia in 1936. He also suffered from asthma.

Became Ill on Train.

Lewis became ill today on a train while en route from his Chicago home. An ambulance was waiting at the station and took him to Garfield hospital, where he died at 7:25 p. m. (Atlanta time), six hours after returning to Washington. Dr. Francis R. Hagner said death was due to coronary thrombosis.

Mrs. Rose Lewis was at her husband's side when he died. They were married nearly 50 years ago. Senator Barkley, Democrat, Kentucky, majority leader, said he was "profoundly shocked" by Lewis' death. He termed the Illinoisan "one of the most brilliant and colorful men ever to occupy the office of public life in America."

As Democratic whip of the senate, Lewis' major duty was to hold the party's voting strength readily available during floor balloting.

In that capacity, he followed with few departures the leadership of the Roosevelt administration. His most outstanding difference with the administration came over Mr. Roosevelt's efforts to procure senate ratification of the St. Lawrence seaway pact with Canada. That Lewis opposed steadily and vigorously.

Attracted Senate Crowds.—A familiar figure at Democratic party national conventions, Lewis was active in party affairs at other times. He was chairman of the Democratic senate campaign committee for 1934.

His dress, his red beard and his slow, dignified delivery of words on the senate floor attracted senate gallery crowds attention. Years before Lewis came to the senate he became acquainted with Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, and that friendship remained unbroken despite many subsequent conflicts as members of opposing parties.

Had Georgian Background.

Senator Lewis had a southern and Georgia background. Tragic chance resulted in his birth at Danville, Va., on May 18, 1866. His mother, Julia Hamilton Lewis, was hurrying from the family home in Augusta, Ga., to Richmond, where her husband, Major John Cable Lewis, was near death from after effects of wounds suffered while serving in the Confederate army.

Bugle Sounds Call of the Prince of Peace—While Across the Sea...

The sun burst from behind the hills east of Fort Benning yesterday morning to sparkle down on 2,000 rigid soldiers formed in this living symbol of Christianity. Ten thousand spectators held their breath as the faint notes of bugles from the hills announced the dawn of the sacred day. The sound of the trumpets drifted off into the distance as the sparkling lights shot through a cloudless sky. Then, choral voices were lifted in a soft chant of hymns. Thus, did the American army—unlike the other armies of the world—greet the dawn of Easter in a tree-lined amphitheater beside the Chattahoochee.

Gigantic After-Easter Sale Gets Under Way Here Today

Constitution, Merchants Sponsor City-Wide Event Featuring Thousands of Bargains; Street Car, Bus, Trolley, Cab Fares Reduced for Shoppers.

Today is the day! Sponsored exclusively by The Constitution and all Atlanta merchants and service establishments, the great Atlanta After-Easter sale gets under way today.

With the theme "Springtime Is Time for New Things," merchandise for every need is on display, at prices so sharply reduced as to make the Atlanta After-Easter sale the biggest bargain day in the history of the city's mercantile life.

No wonder then that thousands of out-of-towners will come here bright and early today for the mammoth sales event.

Fares Reduced. To aid shoppers, there will be special reduced fares on street cars, trackless trolleys and buses from 9 o'clock this morning until 4 o'clock this afternoon.

Taxicabs also will have special reduced fares during the same hours.

In the stores, where shoppers will be amazed at the high quality and the low prices of merchandise offered in the After-Easter sale, young men and young women will mingle in the crowds, and to lucky shoppers will present theater tickets to entertaining shows.

Day for Thrifty-Minded. It's all part of the hospitality extended to those who come here today for the gala event, a day planned weeks ago, so that everything would be in readiness for the invasion of thrifty-minded folk.

Today is the day. Make it your day, and come to Atlanta for the After-Easter sale. You'll find it a real adventure, a day long to be remembered.

It's your day, Georgia men, women and children. Take advantage of the biggest bargain day in years.

Today is the day of the great Atlanta After-Easter sale!

Thief Steals Everything—And the Kitchen Sink. WATERTOWN, S. D., April 9.—(AP)—Police here had heard often enough the old saying about the burglar who "stole everything but the kitchen sink" but they were startled when F. J. Scholtz reported that thieves who entered one of his vacant houses took—yes, the kitchen sink, among other things.

Owner of New Car Afraid To Trust It on the Streets. RICHMOND, Ind., April 9.—(AP)—Police sent to learn why an automobile was standing on a sidewalk turned in this report: "The owner just bought the car. He was afraid it would get hit if he left it in the street—so he parked it on the sidewalk."

Two men were in a sidecar. It was not learned who was driving, but the vehicle overturned on the Roswell road near Sandy Springs. All three were thrown to the highway. Spence, the only one injured, suffered head scratches.

The men then rode toward Atlanta to take Spence to a hospital for treatment.

At Roswell and Mount Perrian roads, the motorcycle halted too suddenly and again overturned. Rufus Bourn Jr., suffered head injuries and died in Grady hospital several hours later. Spence received serious injuries and was admitted to the hospital. The victim's brother was again unscathed.

AMATEUR AVIATOR IS KILLED IN CRASH

Asheville Pilot Flies Craft Into Ground, Apparently Losing Control.

An amateur pilot crashed to his death in a light cabin plane shortly before noon yesterday less than half a mile from Candler airport. Cause of the accident was undetermined.

The victim, Edward B. Faulk, of 328 Kenilworth road, Asheville, N. C., was alive when pulled from the wreckage but died en route to a hospital. The cabin of the plane was demolished.

Witness said Faulk apparently was coming in for a landing at Candler Field when he seemed to lose control and literally flew the ship into the ground. The crash occurred in a vacant lot adjoining the home of the late Doug Davis, pioneer in aviation development here.

Major Wiley R. Wright, inspector for the Civil Aeronautics Authority, said last night the cause of the crash had not been determined and that the investigation would be continued today. The ship was not out of gas, he said.

Papers that Faulk was carrying indicated he was connected with the Appalachian Forest Experiment station of the United States Department of Agriculture at Asheville and that his home originally was at 823 University avenue, Syracuse, N. Y.

The body was taken to the Brandon-Camp funeral home, Hapeville, to await the arrival of relatives. Faulk is survived by his mother, Mrs. M. E. Faulk, and a brother, R. R. Faulk.

Dog Sleeps for Burglars.

Awakes To Bar Officers.

SALT LAKE CITY, April 9.—(AP)—A police dog posted to guard his master's restaurant slept peacefully while burglars ransacked the place. But when police arrived, he was very much alert. He refused to let the officers in.

Troops Form Human Cross At Benning Easter Services

World Observance Includes Fervent Appeal by Pope Pius for Peace.

PORT BENNING, Ga., April 9.—(AP)—Several hundred massed soldiers here today formed a human cross as the army's part of a sunrise Easter service at this world's largest military school.

Spectators estimated by those in charge as high as 10,000 viewed the ceremony which got underway when the notes of trumpeters on distant hills announced the rising sun.

A negro choir recruited from the 24th infantry, negro regiment stationed here, furnished music for the service which was held in a huge natural amphitheater known as horse shoe bowl. Pastors of several denominations took part, and more than 2,000 soldiers were seated in the center of the bowl.

After the service, the various Fort Benning units acted as hosts at a breakfast of hot coffee and doughnuts. A thousand dozen doughnuts and 300 gallons of coffee were prepared for the visitors.

Brigadier General Asa L. Singleton, post commander and commandant of the infantry school, initiated the services three years ago.

PEACE PLEA SOUNDED BY POPE PIUS. A Christian world disrupted by strife yesterday commemorated the glorious, peaceful resurrection of its spiritual leader.

Millions of Americans, from an assemblage of 50,000 on Chicago's lakefront to a tiny congregation of 125 in Rochester, N. Y., participated in sunrise services and collateral festivities ranging from Indian dances to fashion parades. Less jubilant Easter notes were sounded abroad.

In Rome, Pope Pius XII in a 12-minute address in Latin, prayed that the "dull flashes of war" might not ruin the "longed-for dawn of peace."

In Dublin, President Eamon de Valera led a procession honoring

ALLIED COMMANDS MEET IN URGENT WAR CONFERENCES

"Information Sufficiently Concrete To Force Paris and London To Take Notice" Is Basis for Conferences; "Not Time for Statements But for Military Measures," Officer Says.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. LONDON, April 9.—The British and French high commands, acting swiftly upon receipt of ominous information from intelligence agents in Germany, conferred urgently here and in Paris today on the grave situation in Europe which some quarters believed included the possibility of a lightning attack by Germany to the west without a declaration of war.

Prime Minister Chamberlain returned from Scotland and summoned a special cabinet meeting for tomorrow morning. The prime minister and Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax spent the day in conference with political and military chiefs.

Holidays Broken. Premier Daladier and Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet hurried back from Easter holidays and went into immediate consultations with defense ministers and chiefs of the general staff at the war office. They were in constant communication with Chamberlain and Halifax.

The Albanian seizure was deeply overshadowed by the grave news from Germany, secret agents reporting that heavy troop movements toward the Polish, Swiss and Dutch frontiers were continuing. It was semi-officially said that parts of two German divisions had taken up new positions facing the Limburg province of Holland and that heavy Nazi contingents were moving through the Black Forest to the Swiss border. Still other contingents moved through Silesian towns toward the Polish border.

Significant Sentence. The French attitude was summed up in one significant sentence, deep with foreboding. It was: "This is not the time for statements, but for military measures to complete preparations for all eventualities."

Sources close to the French foreign office said the meetings were called to review "information sufficiently concrete to force Paris and London to take notice."

Here, the Sunday Dispatch's diplomatic correspondent said the cabinet would be informed by Foreign Minister Lord Halifax of "reports which support the theory that the seizure of Albania was only a feint by the axis powers to cover an attack against Holland. Germany has been told that an attack against Holland would be regarded as an attack on British and French interests."

It was apparent that a mass of

H. C. MARTIN DIES
OF HEART ATTACK*Victim Found in Motorboat
He Was Piloting.

H. E. Martin, father of Mrs. Marguerite Slaherty, of Atlanta, died of a heart attack yesterday at Fernandina, Fla., while piloting his motorboat, the Annie M. III, press dispatches said last night.

County Judge H. B. Burgess, who conducted the inquest, said papers found on the body and in the boat showed that the victim was both owner and captain of the 37-foot craft which was registered from Beaufort, S. C.

A watchman told coast guardsmen the boat rammed an oil company wharf in the river near Fernandina and that Martin fell down the cockpit when it struck. After hitting the wharf, the craft drifted aground and Martin was found dead, lying on a cushioned seat. He was believed to have been en route from Daytona Beach to Beaufort.

Aids in Revival Services

The Rev. Jesse M. Hendley, radio evangelist, will assist Dr. Arthur L. Allen, pastor in revival services at the Jackson Hill Baptist church beginning today and continuing through April 22. Services will begin each night at 7:30 o'clock.

ATLANTANS TO ATTEND
JACKSONVILLE MEETING

Dr. Gerald Mitchell, of Atlanta, secretary-treasurer of the Southern Academy of Periodontology, will head a group of Atlanta dentists attending the organization's annual meeting at Jacksonville, Fla., April 17 and 18.

Dr. M. D. Huff, also of Atlanta, will conduct a round-table discussion which will be a feature of the two-day program, which also includes a lecture by Dr. G. R. Lundquist, of Chicago, a member of the faculty of the Northwestern University Dental School.

J. HAM LEWIS DIES

when he was born, and his father was an invalid for the rest of his life. The son was raised in Georgia by relatives. He was educated at the Houghton Grade school in Augusta, and later attended the University of Virginia.

In the early '90's, Lewis went to Savannah to live. He began his acquaintance with the law as a clerk in the office of Lawton & Cunningham, then composed of General A. R. Lawton, quartermaster general of the Confederate States; Captain Henry C. Cunningham and Colonel A. R. Lawton Jr., all of whom are now dead.

Later having been admitted to the bar, he entered the law office of Chisolm & Erwin in Savannah.

Married Georgia Girl.

This firm was composed of Judge Walter Chisolm and Robert G. Erwin, the latter later becoming general counsel and president of the Plant System of Railways, now the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad.

While in this office, Lewis expressed a desire to Judge Chisolm to live in the west. He was provided with a pass all the way to Seattle. This was in 1886 or 1887.

A few years later, after making his way somewhat rapidly in Seattle, he returned to Savannah, advertised that if there were any debts owed by him he would settle them, did actually pay up such debts.

Nearly 50 years ago he married the former Miss Rose Lawton Douglas, of Sylvania, to whom he always gave credit for his success in life, attributing his advancement to her counsel and encouragement.

For a time he was a teacher, then a stevedore, lawyer, congressman, soldier, diplomat and senator—but always James Hamilton Lewis was the perfect gentleman.

His courtly manners were known from the waterfront of Seattle, where he labored in young manhood, to the senate halls of Washington and the capitols of Europe where his striking career took him.

Perfectly tailored suits, harmonizing shirts, ties, socks and handkerchiefs, a rakishly tipped hat, spottless gloves, ribbed eyeglasses and a carefully parted beard that was astonishingly pink until creeping age grayed it, made up a personal ensemble that almost obscured the man's abilities.

Early in his congressional career Champ Clark, of Missouri, dubbed him "the greatest dude in the United States." Speaker Tom B. "Czar" Reed called him "the garrulous rainbow."

But men who knew him best said he was a master politician. Court verdicts testified to his effective pleadings at the bar. Votes reflected the power of his oratory. Citations of his legal and historical works evidenced his acumen.

Represented Two States. He had the rare distinction of having represented two states in the national legislature. He was a congressman-at-large from Washington, 1897-99, and senator from Illinois, 1913-19, and 1931-43. He was the first senator whip, having been named to that post by the Democratic majority only in his first term in the upper house.

His war experiences embraced the Spanish-American conflict and the World War. In the former he was a staff colonel, first with General Brooke, in Cuba, and later with General Fred D. Grant, in Porto Rico. Sent to France in 1918 by President Wilson on missions for the War and Navy Departments, he became an aide on the staff of General George Bell, on the Chateau Thierry front, and was returning on the naval ship Mt. Vernon when the vessel was torpedoed and forced to limp back to Brest.

His diplomatic work included membership on a joint high commission on the Alaskan-Canadian boundary which met in London and to which he was appointed by President Wilson. In 1914 he was an United States commissioner to London to execute laws for increasing safety at sea. In 1923 he represented American concessionaires in Turkish oil fields and in 1924 handled a $28,000,000 loan to Mexico. The following year he handled the legal details of a loan of $100,000,000 to continental European nations.

Lewis defeated former Senator Otis F. Glenn by nearly 600,000 votes in the 1936 Democratic landslide, becoming the first Illinois senator to win election for two successive terms since the origin of the direct primary.

Against T. G. Terry, he hung a big question mark over his future political career in 1938, however, when he announced he would resign the following year. Later he amended his remarks to

'I'll Be Back in the Fall --- If We Don't Have a War'

"I'll be back in the fall—if we don't have a war," President Roosevelt said yesterday as he said broadly and waved farewell to a crowd gathered at the Warm Springs railroad station. The President is shown with Secretary of Commerce Harry L. Hopkins (right), just before the presidential special pulled out for Washington, ending his Georgia vacation.

Harry L. Hopkins, secretary of commerce, and Aubrey Williams, head of the national youth administration.

Only about 60 worshippers could crowd into the small, sun-lit chapel where the Rev. Woodfin G. Harry, of the Warm Springs Presbyterian church, made "Peace" the text of the lesson, prayers and sermon.

The text was from St. John, 14th chapter, 27th verse: "Peace I leave with you. My peace I give unto you: Not as the world giveth, give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid."

As the pastor finished and walked down the aisle toward the door the President stopped him and told him with warmth the sermon was "fine."

That the chief executive was greatly concerned over latest developments abroad was made plain to newspapermen on several occasions during his stay at Warm Springs.

He would not comment on neutrality discussions before the senate foreign relations committee. But he was represented as being greatly disturbed over prospects that this nation may be forced to adopt abnormal measures in combating world trade by barter if the Nazi-Fascist axis continues to absorb small independent nations into its economic orbit.

Over the week-end a white house source represented the chief executive as feeling the American people may have to choose soon between giving up all world trade, lowering the American wage-hour standards, or adopting a national policy of subsidizing exports.

He was also said to hold the view that with the loss of independence by each small nation in Europe the safety and prosperity of the United States was affected.

Easter Custom
Leads to Death
Of Jersey Wife*JERSEY CITY, N. J., April 9.—(P)—

Mrs. May Costanza, 39, died today as a result of what Police Captain Harry Norton termed a quarrel with her husband over the baking of an Easter ham.

Norton said Mrs. Costanza's husband, James, superintendent of the building where they lived, told this story:

The Costanzas were poor but decided to have an Easter ham—a tradition of the old country—and had saved up for weeks for it. Mrs. Costanza began cooking the ham this afternoon, interrupted every few minutes by her husband, who cautioned her not to burn it.

She finally told him to get out and leave the ham to her. He went to a vacant apartment in the same building and went to sleep. He was awakened by crying in the hall, where he found his 14-year-old daughter, Marie, sobbing:

"Mama just jumped off the roof."

Costanza ran outside and found his wife on the pavement, close by the three-story building. She died an hour and a half later at Medical Center.

say he would not ask for re-nomination.

Lewis didn't seek the quiet and safety of the sidelines during his second term. When reports started flowing thick and fast that President Roosevelt was eyeing a third term, he publicly declared any such attempt would "destroy the Democratic party." Lewis also sided against Governor Henry Horner in the 1938 Illinois primary battle, announcing his preference for Michael L. Igoe for the United States senate.

As a member of the foreign relations committee of the senate Lewis had shown more concern about international than domestic affairs. He devoted much time and study to the war debt problem, advancing a plan whereby he said Great Britain and France could deduct from their debts to this country, amounts lent the United States during the Revolutionary and Civil Wars.

Senator Lewis, a lawyer in private life, accepted a remunerative post with the city of Chicago in 1938 as legal adviser for the municipal commission struggling with the problem of traction consolidation.

HORNER MOURNS DEATH OF LEWIS

CHICAGO, April 9.—(P)—Governor Henry Horner said tonight, after being informed of Senator James Hamilton Lewis' death, "the people of our state and nation are deprived of the services of a great statesman."

The Governor, who returned tonight from Florida, did not indicate whom he might appoint to succeed Lewis, whose term would have expired in 1943.

Horner was informed of the Illinois senator's death, after some hesitation, by his secretary, John T. Casey, who changed his pre-arranged plans to withhold the news until tomorrow because the Governor still needs rest and must avoid excitement. Horner has been convalescing for four and a half months from a heart ailment and fatigue.

The Governor's return to Illinois formally ended an unofficial four-man regency board which has been ruling in his absence. "The passing of Senator Lewis is, of course, a great shock to me. I suffer a tremendous personal loss and the people of our state and nation are deprived of the services of a great statesman."

"Throughout his illustrious career he has unselfishly devoted himself to the welfare of our citizens. Despite his illness in recent years he continued to carry on his work in the interests of the people with the spirit of true patriotism so characteristic of him. Illinois deeply mourns the passing of this great leader."

CRASH NEAR MIDWAY FATAL TO MECHANIC

SAVANNAH, Ga., April 9.—(P)—H. B. Love, 34, of Concord, N. C., a motorcycle mechanic, died in a hospital here today from injuries received last night when his motor crashed into a cow on the coastal highway near Midway.

Love, who had been working in Jacksonville for the past several weeks, was en route to Concord to visit his family over Easter, when the accident occurred. His wife, three sons and a large family connection survive him.

MRS. MARIE McLEAN
DIES IN 71ST YEAR*Mother of Mrs. C. W. Binns, of Atlanta, Succumbs in Aiken, S. C.

Mrs. Marie Elizabeth McLean, 70, wife of the Rev. P. J. McLean, prominent Baptist minister, and the mother of Mrs. Carlton W. Binns, of Atlanta, died yesterday afternoon at her home in Aiken, South Carolina.

A native of New Castle, Pa., Mrs. McLean had been a resident of Aiken for the past 35 years, where for more than 30 years Dr. McLean was pastor of the First Baptist church. He recently retired.

Although she had been in poor health for several years, she had been seriously ill for only a week. Mrs. McLean was one of the early leaders in the W. C. T. U. movement and was one of the founders of the Aiken Women's Missionary Union.

For many years she served as a member of the board of trustees of the Connie Maxwell orphanage. She organized the ladies' auxiliary of her husband's church and was president for several terms.

Other survivors are two sons, the Rev. Philip L. McLean Jr., of Abbeville, and John Howard McLean, of Washington, D. C., and two sisters-in-law, Mrs. J. Howard Frew, of New Castle, N. J., and Mrs. Carl Stanford, of Albany, N. J.

Funeral services will be conducted at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at Aiken.

Moonshine Loving CopsLook to the Tomorrow

ASHLAND, Ky., April 9.—(P)—Authentic Kentucky moonshine booze was put away for police of 50 years hence.

A half-pint of 'shine, the kind that makes the moon come around the mountain, was placed in a new partition in a re-arrangement of the inside of the Ashland police department with a note reading: "This is a genuine and authentic sample of Kentucky Moon, the old-time firewater, the kind we had in the good old days."

"This is left here so that policemen 50 years from now may have a drink on us."

ATLANTA - MEXICO AIR BLAZER SETS RECORD ON RETURN

Big Transport Makes Flight in 8 Hours and 52 Minutes; Mayor and Officials Praise Trip.

Mexico City was brought within 8 hours and 52 minutes actual flying time of Atlanta last night as the Eastern Air Lines trail-blazing transport settled gracefully to the ground in front of the Atlanta airport transportation building.

At 10:25 o'clock (Atlanta time) last night an easy halt was made at the Atlanta airport by the plane that had left Mexico City's airport exactly at noon (Atlanta time). Stops had been made at Brownsville and Houston, Texas, accounting for the elapsed time of just ten hours and 25 minutes.

Tail winds had favored the flight, which was made through cloudless skies.

History-Making Hop.

Out of the plane stepped Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, president of Eastern Air Lines, and a dozen or more men who had been his guests on this history-making flight—which left Atlanta last Wednesday—the maiden trip of a daily passenger schedule that now links Atlanta in breath-taking bondage with the capital city of Mexico, exactly 1,520 air miles distant.

The speed and ease of the trip left even Mayor William Hartsfield virtually speechless.

"It's incomprehensible," said the mayor, as his feet struck the soil he left only last Wednesday. "You may say that I am heartily in favor of the development of our airport to keep pace with the amazing strides of aviation."

To Renew Fight.

Atlanta's congressman, Robert Ramspeck, added:

"I'm going back now to renew my fight for those freight rates with a better idea of the future of transportation."

The special plane that landed at 10:25 p. m. brought Hartsfield, Ramspeck, Alvin B. Cates, president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce; Jesse Draper, chairman of the chamber's aviation committee; Mayor Ben C. Douglas, of Charlotte, N. C., and Ralph McGill, executive editor of The Constitution. On the regular passenger plane out of Mexico City, which landed in Atlanta shortly after midnight, came William K. Jenkins, Smythe Gambrell and Wiley L. Moore, Eastern Air Lines officials, who had left on the special plane with the party last Wednesday.

The trip, according to all the passengers, was so smooth and easy that it was delightfully uneventful.

"There was nothing to do," said Mayor Hartsfield, "but to sit back and strive to appreciate the wonder of it all."

"Here we are in Atlanta, just eight hours and 52 minutes in the air since we left Mexico City."

"Those who did not make the trip can appreciate the wonder of that more when I tell them that Mexico City is two days distant from Brownsville, Mexico, via automobile."

Fresh Chapter.

"This new air route between our city and the capital of Mexico is the beginning of what will unquestionably be a delightfully fresh chapter in the commercial development of our city. We now have Mexico City practically at our doorstep. We are the most important pause in the daily flights that will be made between the capital city of Mexico and the city of New York."

"This airport of ours will soon make this city as important in Latin American trade as New Orleans now is because of its fortunate position as a seaport. With the development of aviation Atlanta will gradually become the natural gateway between New York and Mexico and Central and South America. The opportunities are boundless."

Ramspeck, Cates, Draper and all the other Atlantans were all lyrical in their praise of this new opportunity that has been brought to Atlanta's door.

Voyagers Entertained.

The air voyagers were elaborately entertained in Mexico City. From the moment of their landing in that city last Thursday until their departure at noon yesterday the Mexicans had been lavish in their entertainment of the guests who were helping to write aviation history. Fêtes had been staged in their honor and all came back laden with sombreros, Mexican baskets, pottery, blankets and all manner of souvenirs that are distinctive to the Latin neighbors below the Rio Grande.

Distinguished passengers on the flight to Mexico and back were Luis Quintanilla, charge d'affaires

It's Wedding Bells in 'Wuthering Heights'

David Niven and Merle Oberon have just become Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Linton in this scene from Samuel Goldwyn's "Wuthering Heights," which will open Friday at Loew's Grand.

MOVIE SUGGESTION MAY WIN YOU CASH

Name Your Favorite Story and Cast for Filming
It in Contest.

What is your favorite story? Would you like to see it filmed, and with your favorite cast of stars playing the leading characters? Of course you would! Then write down the title of the story, the name of its author, the names of the leading characters with the names of the actors you would like to see in the parts and send to the Cinema Suggestion Editor of The Constitution.

The best suggestion submitted will claim a $25 cash prize. Two runner-up prizes also will be given in the amounts of $15 and $10, respectively. Fifty guest tickets to see the Samuel Goldwyn production of the famous Emily Brontë classic, "Wuthering Heights," which stars Merle Oberon, Lawrence Olivier and David Niven and opens at Loew's Friday, will be given as "balm" prizes to others who take part in the Goldwyn scenario suggestion and casting competition.

Samuel Goldwyn, Hollywood's ace producer, in making "Wuthering Heights," made a daring departure from the usual. He took a book which shocked a nation by its stark brutality and emotional cruelty and has made out of it a picture not only great, but one which has drawn the unqualified praise of critics and public alike. He is anxious to follow up the success of "Wuthering Heights" with another picture just as different and as daring.

Everyone who has ever read a book at all has at sometime or other said to himself, "Now there's a story I'd like to see filmed. So-and-so could play the part of so-and-so to perfection. Why don't those producers out in Hollywood do something about it?"

Well, here's your chance to suggest to Samuel Goldwyn not only a picture, but also its ideal cast. Send in your suggestion now!

"They're swell fellows," commented Ralph McGill.

The special transport plane that made the trail-blazing trip stopped in Atlanta. Captain Rickenbacker, Congressman Ramspeck and the others who were returning to Washington and New York waited for the regular flight plane out of this city, leaving Candler field shortly after midnight.

In command of the special plane were Sidney Shannon and Larry Pabst.

R. M. STEWART JR. DIES IN 48TH YEAR

Military Honors To Be Paid
Widely Known Atlanta Legionnaire.

Robert M. Stewart Jr., 47, president of "Battery B" Club of the 116th field artillery and for many years an active worker in local and state affairs of the American Legion, died unexpectedly yesterday morning at his home on the Marietta road near Smyrna.

A native of Dawson, Ga., Mr. Stewart spent most of his life in this section and was widely known. A veteran of overseas service during the World War, he also saw active duty on the Mexican border. He was a member of the Atlanta Legion Post No. 1 and of the 40 and 8 Society.

Full military honors will be paid at special services at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the new Legion home, 1071 Piedmont avenue, and the body will lie in state there beginning at 10 o'clock this morning. This is the first Legionnaire's body to lie in state at the new Legion home.

The Rev. A. B. Caldwell and the Rev. R. C. Cickler will officiate. Members of "Battery B" Club will act as honorary pallbearers and an honorary escort will be made up of members of the Legion and the 40 and 8 Society.

Capitol View Lodge No. 640, F. & A. M., will have charge of graveside services at the National cemetery, Marietta, and burial will be under direction of H. M. Patterson and Son.

GRAVES TO SPEAK.

CHAPEL HILL, N. C., April 9.—(P)—John Temple Graves II, editor of the Birmingham (Ala.) Age-Herald, will deliver the 144th commencement address at the University of North Carolina Tuesday, June 6, it was announced today.

HEARING ON CABS TOMORROW NIGHT

Change in Rate Schedule
Among Three Ordinances Proposed.

A public hearing on three important proposed ordinances affecting the city's taxicabs will be held at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow night at city hall by a special taxicab committee headed by Councilman J. Allen Couch.

To be considered are: 1. A change in the rate schedule; 2. a proposal by the police committee that every cab be required to carry liability insurance, and 3. Mayor Hartsfield's recommendation that every phase in the city's taxicab ordinance tending to give any company a monopoly be eliminated.

Officials of the Black and White Company asked for the rate change, an aftermath of the short-lived drivers' strike two weeks ago. Their proposal is to advance the 15-cent zone rate to 20 cents and add a charge for each passenger over two. They would eliminate special charges to stations, the ball park and outside the city limits but would charge additional for more than three passengers on trips outside the zone.

ATLANTANS LAUNCH CLEAN-UP CAMPAIGN

City-Wide Drive To Last Six Days Opens; Paint Up, Plant-Up Urged.

Atlantans today launched a concentrated drive to improve the city's appearance and to make it a better place in which to live.

The city's annual clean-up, paint-up and fire prevention campaign, sponsored by the Women's Chamber of Commerce, gets under way today and during the next six days every citizen of this community is urged to contribute his or her effort toward making a "cleaner Atlanta," Mrs. Carolyn Seivers, chairman, said.

"The campaign should be the occasion for a complete inventory of things to be done," she said. "Not only are we urging cleaning up but painting and planting work around the home so that we can truly say we have done our part to make Atlanta cleaner and more beautiful."

"More than 50 trucks will be available to haul away rubbish."

MARIETTA, Ga., April 9.—Thirty-second annual session of the women's auxiliary of Cherokee Presbytery will be held April 11 and 12 at the First Presbyterian church here, with Mrs. Dean Owens, president, of Rome, presiding. Annual election of officers is slated Tuesday afternoon.

EMORY PROFESSOR WINS STUDY AWARD

Dr. Mose L. Harvey Leaves for Europe in June.

Dr. Mose L. Harvey, assistant professor of history at Emory University, has been awarded a $1,000 grant-in-aid by the Science Research Council for first-hand study in European history.

The award, one of several made by the council each year, will enable Dr. Harvey to continue work on the same problem and he will leave in June and spend the summer abroad, studying in Russia and other countries.

A graduate of Boys' High school in Atlanta, Dr. Harvey received his A. B. from Emory in 1930 and won his M. A. in history in 1931. From 1933 to 1938, he was instructor in history and last year was promoted to an assistant professorship.

Atlanta, Ga., has 350 churches with more than 100,000 members representing 20 denominations.

GERMANY AND PATAGONIA

Argentina long has wooed the Nazi siren and today is being given an inkling of the cost. It is a chapter from an old story, but one that, if authenticated, should give caution to other South American countries which seek to deal with the present German regime on its own terms. These terms are barter with a strong filler of intimidation and intrigue.

There is a distinct possibility that the document supporting the latest charges of Nazi plotting will be proved a forgery. But the record of former years, particularly from 1880 to 1900, lend a strong tinge of probability to the case.

In the first place, the exploitation of Patagonia, assertedly the land recommended for German control, has been almost entirely carried out by Germans. Three brothers—the Lahusens, one of whom was questioned in the territorial plot—have long been known as the "Kings of Patagonia."

Secondly, it will be recalled that during the years of the World War a major naval engagement was fought between British and German South Atlantic fleets near the Falkland Islands, the British possession off the Patagonian coast east of the Straits of Magellan. The vessels sought control of the sea lanes in that region, vital to the food supplies of the island kingdom of England, but the interest of Germany in that section of the world is well demonstrated.

History tells of repeated attempts on the part of Germany, particularly under the aegis of Bismarck, to nullify the Monroe Doctrine and set up German states in South America to accommodate the bursting hordes of German peoples. Whereas prior to 1880, mainly from 1848 until 1880, Germany had encouraged the flight of surplus and discontented folk to the United States, in 1880 the flow was turned to the Brazilian states of Sao Paulo, Santa Catarina, Parana and Rio Grande do Sul, sparsely populated and rich virgin territories ripe for the intrigue that followed the imperial German flag. Germany was not content to lose these Reichsfolk, did not want them assimilated by new nationalities.

Only the stern hand of Theodore Roosevelt blocked the well laid out plan to sever the Brazilian states and found a German island in the heart of the richest South American territories.

At the same time occurred another enlightening instance—one which has all the earmarks of present-day German tactics. Venezuela was not "living up to her engagements"—and, indeed, the regime of President Castro was troublesome to more than one nation. But Germany suavely warned that coercive measures would be applied, without, however, "any permanent occupation" or "acquisitions." Theodore Roosevelt suggested arbitration and pointed out there would be no occupation, temporary or permanent.

Since that day conditions have changed considerably. Brazil has turned a cold shoulder to Nazi blandishments. The United States proposes to free her from the money tyranny of Aski marks and barter trade. An assertedly Nazi-fostered revolt was quickly crushed and activity turned then to Argentina, where a heavy German population could be brought into the Reich orbit.

German schools formed the basis for the infiltration and development of the totalitarian homeland idea among the German citizens of Argentina. Steps have been forced there in an effort to halt the increasing boldness of the Fascist intrigue.

And now comes the report of German plotting for an "independent" Patagonia carved from the lower half of Argentina and Chile. It is not as fantastic as it would appear on the surface and history certainly lends it substance. The territory stretches about 750 miles from the Straits of Magellan to the Gulf of San Matias and comprises rich oil fields and vast cattle and wheat lands ideally designed for German exploitation.

That it would have been almost impossible of execution is obvious; it is mainly important in that it furnishes another clue to the difficulties the United States and other nations of the western hemisphere will face in preserving the ideals of democracy and free peoples from the sapping intrigues of totalitarian powers, hungry for conquest and plunder. It is important also in that it demonstrates the need for action in the United States to permit closer trade and cultural relations with Argentina as a step toward freezing out greater and greater German control of that country through trade tyranny and propaganda.

BETTER FURNISHED HOMES

From a number of sources information comes that the home furnishing business throughout the United States is in the midst of a substantial rise. The building of new homes, the prospect of less government in business, the usual spring urge to improve the home, as well as the stimulus to consumer buying generated by the several world fairs now or soon to be in progress, are contributing largely to this improvement.

The home furnishing business is reported to be up an average of 15 per cent. There is more confidence than has been noted for the past five years. Business and government, it is felt, now have reached a stage where co-operation is not only essential to a steady recovery, but a better understanding has already become a realization.

Cheaper, simpler and more liberal financial policies in the furnishing, construction and purchasing of new homes have done much to bring about the advancement. According to recent figures for the nation as a whole 167,361 dwelling units were started in 1938 compared with 149,139 units in 1937. All of these had to be furnished in whole or part. This is an encouraging piece of information, particularly for the reason 1937 was, in practically all respects, a more prosperous year than 1938.

The average cost per dwelling was $300 less in 1938 than in the preceding year. The savings thus became available for additional furnishings. Improved designing and modern furnishings and appliances are encouraging the construction of the smaller unit. But these new homes have relatively more liveable space as a result of the additional conveniences and furnishings and their location in the proper place.

The people of Atlanta have always been a home loving people. In all directions new homes and improvements upon the old are particularly noticeable at this time. It is no exaggeration to say the business of the home is doing well in Atlanta.

FALSE ECONOMY

It is not to be denied that a judicious expenditure of public money is greatly to be desired. In fact, it seems particularly necessary at the present time. Every tax dollar, every cent taken from the people of Georgia should be forced to produce full value in essential services.

The danger of plunging blindly and headlong down the road to frugality, however, is so obvious a halt should be made long enough, at least, to survey a few of the hazards which lie ahead.

Georgia, despite the tremendous industrial expansion which is taking place within her borders, continues to remain an agricultural state. The preponderance of the population still live on the farm. They will continue to produce farm products. But farm products for the highly competitive markets don't "just grow." Plant disease and insect pests, if nothing else, make this impossible.

The people have set up the State Department of Entomology to combat the cotton boll weevil, the white fringe beetle, the pink boll worm, the sweet potato weevil, to mention only a few of the pests. Then there are plant diseases which, if not controlled, or destroyed, would soon prove ruinous to the agricultural interests of the state.

It is imperative that this type of service be continued at the maximum of efficiency. The ravages of insect pests and plant diseases do not increase or decrease with changing political theories of budgetary expenditures. The few dollars allegedly saved under the guise of economy may, in all probability will, cost the farmers of the state hundreds of thousands of dollars. It would be a glaring example of false economy.

Editorial of the Day

OPPORTUNITIES OF THE TIME

(From The Charleston News and Courier.)
In the opinion of The News and Courier any man or any charming lady who is an eloquent speaker and quick in retort, running on a platform promising $30 every Thursday for all persons over or under fifty, salaries of not less than $1,500 a year for all (white) persons, a maximum of forty hours of work a week, fifteen cents cotton and thirty cents tobacco, three dollar automobile licenses, and with persuasiveness arguing that the money can be raised without increasing taxation except of the rich, can be elected in a primary to any office in the "gift of the people." When one reads that in Maine Republican congressmen have been re-elected after endorsing the "Townsend plan" one is convinced that in South Carolina the ambitious have not perceived the opportunities of the time. The evidences are overwhelming that everywhere in the United States the Americans will now swallow anything, and The News and Courier, for one, no longer sees any good reason to be surprised at the faith of "Father" Divine's hordes of followers. Millions of voters in every part of the United States are gulping joyously and all promises that "every day'll be Sunday by and by" and the notion is firmly fixed in the American mind that government can forever take enough from the rich to make everybody else rich forever.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

NEEDLESS WORRY As usual in troubled times, the financial community is worrying over what war abroad may do to the American exchanges. If government experts are correct, however, much of the worry is needless. What is feared is a great rush to liquidate foreign holdings. And the experts expect that, in the event of a war in Europe, the belligerent governments will instantly seize all securities owned abroad by their nationals.

The British and French plans, which are obviously the most important, are said to have been prepared with great care. The object of seizing the securities would be to have available assets with which to purchase war materials and commodities. Once seized, the securities would be vested in government corporations or perhaps turned over to some such agent as J. P. Morgan & Company, for orderly liquidation. It is even stated that the British and French are prepared to liquidate co-operatively, avoiding the danger of competitive selling.

Undoubtedly, the assets to be liquidated would be very great. Scaremongers have exaggerated the American holdings of the British and French securities. But even the most conservative government estimates put the total of American gold, dollar balances, securities and less realizable assets owned here by the two governments and their citizens at just under $3,000,000,000. Of this total, it is thought that slightly over $1,000,000,000 is in securities. Nevertheless, with a war boom in progress and with the selling well managed, even $1,000,000,000 in securities might be comfortably absorbed by the American markets over a period of time.

Furthermore, if war comes securities will be held in reserve, while early buying is done with gold and dollar balances. Thus it is not thought that it will be necessary to close the stock markets, as it was in 1914. A program for the emergency, including immediate consultations by the President with representatives of the Treasury, the SEC, the Federal Reserve Board, the New York Exchange and the large New York banks, is already drawn up.

FLIGHT OF CAPITAL It seems axiomatic that, so long as war threatens but is deferred, foreign holdings in this country will continue to increase. In the last month, they have increased vastly. Exact figures on the world movements of money are never available, but it is authoritatively understood that, in March alone, $300,000,000 in gold was received in this country. In the same way, the greatest proportion is flight capital. Foreign dollar balances have also risen by many tens of millions, again mostly flight capital. Yet both the Treasury and SEC profess surprise at the relative calmness of the money markets, and express satisfaction that cash and bullion have not sought refuge here in still more staggering amounts.

In the gold and dollar balances, the governments and central banks have very large interests. Securities purchases, however, are also being made by foreign investors, which is particularly interesting in view of Wall Street's unshakable conviction that foreigners are "dumping" their stocks and causing market breaks. "Foreign dumping" and "raids from Paris and London" were mentioned, for example, in connection with the sharp market break of last Tuesday. Actually, SEC studies now show that on Monday there was a balance of several million dollars on the buying side in orders from abroad. The net of foreign selling on Tuesday amounted to a mere $700,000.

Naturally, foreign buying can hardly be expected to continue while a sharp slump is going on in the American market. At such times, it drops off. But in the intervals, according to government authorities, it invariably picks up again. Thus, foreign securities holdings, as well as the gold and dollar balances, are on the increase. Incidentally, the SEC believes that the real cause of the recent market break was not the war, but a sudden bearishness among investment counselors. In fact, the market was responding to its own hocus-pocus, and not to any influence from abroad.

A DELIBERATE POLICY Finally, there's no doubt that part of the accumulation of the foreign holdings in this country represents deliberate policy on the part of the governments concerned. In the same way, the British are understood to be building up gold reserves in Canada, and leaving newly-mined gold on deposit in West Africa. Altogether, it is time for a little realistic thinking on the economic meaning of war.

A Mystery Tourist
From Decatur, Ga.

A long and pitiful letter has been received in this office from Tangier, Morocco. The writer asks that his name not be made public, for he is a Jew recently escaped from Germany, after 14 months in a concentration camp. He says he fears the Gestapo, and death for his family, still in Germany, if it becomes known that he is appealing for aid, is telling even hints of his story of torture and abuse and suffering.

He explains his writing to a newspaperman in Atlanta, Ga., by saying that, "by Divine providence," he met "an American gentleman, a tourist passing through Morocco, after conversing with him for an hour he told me that his home is in Decatur, Ga. He was indeed very kind and showed a great interest, in fact, in my present situation. He presented me the name of your paper and requested me to write to you and I hope that you will excuse my attitude in addressing this letter to you. It is my consolation that you will truly appreciate my present difficulties and that in you I feel that I may have a helping hand."

Now, I don't know about the poet in Morocco whose home is in Decatur, Ga. Has he returned home, yet? And if he has, can he give any corroboration to the story, and the genuineness, of my Moroccan correspondent? Likewise, has the unnamed gentleman of Decatur a story to tell of his own experiences while touring in that distant land. We'd like to hear it, if he has.

So, if such a person there be and if he recognizes that he is the one of whom we write here, won't he please communicate with this office and make himself known? Thanks.

An Extract
Or Two.

It should be permissible, however, to quote a paragraph or two from this letter, from Tangier. Speaking of his experience in a German concentration camp, the writer says:

"... I was suddenly attacked by two storm troopers, arrested and beaten up. The next day I was brought up before the so-called People's Court and sentenced to 14 months in the concentration camp."

"After 14 months of cruel treatment, my body tortured and tattooed with profane language, I was released on the following conditions:

"(1) My right as a citizen is taken away.
"(2) I was forced to sign two documents. The first stating that I have been treated well; the second, should I attempt to make any propaganda against the third Reich, or come back to Germany, I, as well as my family, will be subject to Art. V, which means the death penalty."

He then tells of tremendous difficulties he had in France, to prevent his forcible return to Germany and how, at last, he was sent to an International Settlement at Tangier.

Now, he wants to go to Australia where, he writes, there is an opening for him. He tells how unsuited is the life he is forced to live in Tangier and makes, as you may guess, a rather pitiful appeal.

For an Old Friend.

An old friend writes, telling of the serious illness of his youngest boy and enclosing a piece of verse, asking that it be published here, if possible, as an exception to the rule but, for an old friend—

"PART OF ME."

When evening shadows dim the flaring sky
And tired birds start slowly on the wing,
The vision blurs, for tears then fill
No longer can I sing.

Then morning comes—and shadows disappear,
The feathered creatures sing their happy lay
There must be something wrong—I cannot hear
Nor can I sing today!

Why seek the cause—when there before me rests
In peaceful slumber—of myself a part
Another angel—called to God and blessed
Yet leaves behind, another broken heart.

EASTER SPIRIT

By HUGH S. JOHNSON.

Age-Old PHILADELPHIA Festival Pa.—My learned friends, let me tell that, among nearly all ancient races, since the beginning of history, there was a festival much like Easter at about this time of the year—the vernal equinox or the beginning of spring. All were much alike. People cleaned up their homes, lit old fires anew and changed worn clothes to bright fresh garments. What Mrs. Nude Zel will do this Easter, Mrs. Neanderthal was doing twenty thousand years ago.

It is not human beings alone who do it. All life does it. Animals and reptiles shed their dirty winter coats and come out in new and shining raiment. The whole earth does it—trees, grass, birds and flowers. It is a clean, fresh start for everybody and everything. It is no wonder that men from the start have followed nature in this annual renovation.

But it is a pity that, generally speaking, this new blossoming in humanity at Easter is only skin-deep.

Might Yet If ever there was a time in this generation when it would have been well for the world to burn its old garments of hatred, suspicion, unfairness, greed and inhumanity—this is the time. If we could only do as all life is doing now and take a fresh start, we might yet save what is left of civilization.

In Europe, the issues now seem so clear that more could be gained by negotiation than by war.

Some say, "This is no time to do it—the 'democracies' are not sufficiently armed." That is precisely to say that there will never be a time to do it and that a peaceful outcome is impossible. It is to say that the whole European conflict is between a determination on the one side to preserve all present boundaries and, on the other, to readjust them, and that the "have" nations will not negotiate with the "have-not" nations until they are strong enough to resist.

One's afraid and one's dreads. This is the best time of all to negotiate. But there is precious little Easter spirit among nations.

Resented Thank God, there is some in this country, try, Marian Anderson, a negro, perhaps the world's greatest contralto, was denied permission to sing in a Washington auditorium. Yes, she is a negro—our negro.

GOOD MORNING
By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

"LITTLE CHILDREN." Dr. Robert E. Speer, in a remarkable sermon at Wesley Memorial Methodist church, Atlanta, last Thursday noon, took as his text verses 33-35 in the 13th chapter of the Gospel of John, which reads: "Little children, yet a little while I am with you, but I shall see you no more. The world rejoices because I go, but you cannot come; so now I say unto you, a new commandment I give unto you, that ye love one another, as I have loved you, that ye also love one another. By this shall all men know that ye are My disciples, if ye have love one to another."

Reminding us that this was the only occasion when Jesus employed the phrase, "little children," and interpreting the phrase in its depth of meaning, Dr. Speer declared that we are to be tested by this "new commandment" of the Master—tested by the world. "This parting message of the Lord provides us the essence of the Christian religion," said Dr. Speer.

"We shall not be finally and fully tested by our creedal and but by our love one to another, or the lack of it," he continued.

And he called our attention to the fact that Jesus not only commands us to love one another, even as He loves us, but He gives us the motivation and the grace by which we may fulfill this high command. He described the love of Christ as being perfect, as coming down from above, and as changeless and timeless. Said he: "We sometimes hear the phrase, 'falling into love,' but I remind you that Christ is here talking about something infinitely above and beyond any form of love into which we may fall. Rather, one must aspire to reach up to the love of God which is in Christ Jesus, moved and sustained by the under-lying grace which only He can supply. The love of Christ constraineth us."

Holding our attention to the intimate and endearing phrase, "little children," Dr. Speer, in his powerful and yet quiet manner, led our thoughts through the intricate world scene, pointing out at each step of the way, the utterly futile effort of those men and those movements that attempt to coerce men into molds of blind submission to such ideologies as a totalitarian state and religion and culture.

"Christ must needs offer up Himself upon the cross as the one and only way of atonement for the sins of the race, and we who accept Him as Saviour and Lord must be willing to accept His way of life which is based upon sacrificial love and service if we are to show forth to the world that we are His friends," said Dr. Speer.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

MEXICO CITY, April 9.—We were riding in one of the flat-bottomed barges on the canals of Xochimilco. The canals of the ancient Indian village were thronged with a holiday crowd. There were small tables on the boats and about them gathered families eating picnic meals. About swarmed smaller boats manned by Indian men and women selling flowers picked from the islands. The boats were filled with a riotous color of all imaginable flowers.

"It is no wonder we produce such painters," said a Mexican official. "Look at these." He held up three tremendous bunches of peas and roses purchased for about 25 cents.

SURPASSING BEAUTY

"There are no colors like them anywhere else." He was right. To the group of visitors here for the opening of the new air route which places Mexico City within less than 24 hours of New York and only a dozen hours from Atlanta, the three-day round of festivities had ended with a pageant which for vivid color, beauty and entertainment surpassed anything ever offered here before. All day Saturday the visitors, including six Atlanteans headed by Congressman Robert Ramspeck and Mayor William B. Hartfield, were the guests of the Mexican government. From all parts of Mexico they brought to the beautiful temple of fine arts, dancers, singers and musicians to portray the folklore of the nation. With them came Mexico's finest choir, two greatest opera singers, Yaqui Indians to give the first tribal dances ever offered in Mexico City, and two great bands. It was a show which lasted four hours. The aviation visitors were in boxes and the people jammed the remainder of the theater, which has three balconies. The screen, which was made by Tiffany at a cost of one million pesos, went up on a program of pageantry and beauty which was all but breath-taking in the sweep of its beauty and color.

REAL PEOPLE

There were the Mariachis with folk dancers from far-off sections of Mexico. Here were no sleek, vaudeville performers. There were the real people from the real villages of Mexico. There was the rooster fight dance in which two live roosters for a while took part. There were musicians and dancers. And there were speeches. Mexico was aroused over this flight, which so effectively joins her with the greatest city of North America. The state band played a medley of American tunes. There were a number of southern numbers, "Old Black Joe," "Swanee River," and finally one which caused laughter directed at the box where sat the Atlanteans. The tune was "Marching Through Georgia," but they followed it with Dixie and the crowd cheered the rebel yell which greeted the tune.

Later in the afternoon another band at the famed Miramar restaurant on one of the islands of Xochimilco played "Swanee River" and before the afternoon was done the tune "Rio Swanee" was assured a place on all future Mexican programs. The program closed with one of the old Aztec sun dances and then we all took cars for the drive to the small village of Xochimilco.

Time was when Mexico City was in a lake. And time was when the islands of Xochimilco floated. They had been built on reeds on which earth had been put, then more reeds and then more earth. Soon a drough in the fifteenth century and the islands sank so low the trees took root in the bottom of the lake and anchored the islands. Today there are the canals.

The boats are flower-decorated. The canals are jammed with them on holidays. The boats are propelled by men and poles after the manner of Venice's gondolas. All Mexico City seems to take to them on holidays. Rich and poor enjoy the boats. There are boats in which sit musicians playing guitars and violins, boats in which are Marimba players. For a small coin they will attach their boat to yours and play music as one goes along. Mexicans all seem to sing. They have the spirit for it and they have the songs.

SWEET PEOPLE Ambassador Josephus and Mrs. Daniels have done a great job for America here in Mexico. One does not have to search for a word to describe them. They are sweet people. There was some resentment toward him when first he came to Mexico but today everyone likes him and everyone trusts him. These are difficult times and the whole story of Josephus Daniels cannot be told. He has done a great job of representing his country. The dinner which he and Mrs. Daniels gave, with Mexico's diplomatic and official leaders in attendance with the American visitors, was one of the highlights of the trip.

And so, soon after this is on the way, we will go out to the airport and take off for Atlanta, twelve and a half hours away. Airplanes annihilate distance in a manner which stimulates the imagination. The ride to the airport is dreaded. Coming in after arrival we had a police escort. Captain Eddie Rickenbacker was scared stiff, as was also the others. "Oh, to be back in the safe airplane," he said between clenched teeth as the driver whipped in and out of traffic, staying right on the tail of the motorcycle.

New Shingles Won't Save the House From a Storm If the Foundation Is Rotten

By ROBERT QUILLLEN.

Insiders in Washington tell two stories that are harmless and amusing on the surface yet tainted with implications as sinister as a man drawing a knife.

The first concerns Mr. George Messersmith, assistant secretary of state. One year and five months ago he wrote an official memorandum prophesying the things that Hitler would do in Europe. Other members of the State Department were amused. In their opinion, Mr. Messersmith was, to say the least, "fooling things."

Now time and Hitler have proved Mr. Messersmith right in every detail. That alone is nothing to get excited about, for many another observer saw what was coming.

But what of the officials who thought it funny? They are still on the job. If they were so blindly wrong in this matter, what assurance have we that they are not being equally wrong in other and greater matters?

The other story concerns Admiral Bloch, head of the fleet. He had charge of the recent maneuvers, and received generous praise for his success. But he is getting along in years, and the story that other officers were astonished as well as delighted by his ability.

SAFE CRACKSMEN GET $1,100 CASH FROM RESTAURANT

Police Believe Yeggs Gained Entrance to Vick's Delicatessen Store Through Sub-Basement.

A total of $1,100 cash was stolen last night when yeggs "cracked" a safe in Vick's Delicatessen at 2 Broad street.

Max J. Muldower, of 148 Atlanta avenue, proprietor of the combined store and restaurant, said $800 belonged to the store and $300 to R. Ramos, an employee.

Muldower said the store closed at about 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon and that he returned to check receipts at about 10:30 o'clock.

"I noticed the safe was not near the front door, its usual place," he said. "I hurriedly entered and found it had been dragged to the rear, near a big refrigerator."

"The whole door had been torn off. I investigated further and discovered some boards had been pried off the floor of the basement, which has a sub-basement under it."

Police were called, and detectives theorized entrance had been gained into the sub-basement, where a nearby newspaper stores rolls of newsprint, and thence into the delicatessen.

Detectives said crowbars had been used to rip off the safe door, but no tools of any kind were found. Fingerprint men dusted the safe, a small, heavy one, with powder in efforts to find prints.

Reports of their findings were not available at an early hour this morning. Muldower said he was uncertain if he was insured.

LOANS $20 UP TO $5,000 WHICH of these ways Suite YOU Best?

☐ PLAIN NOTE—Loans are made on nothing but your name signed to a simple note.

☐ ENDORSEMENT—Loans are made on your note endorsed by some friend or relative.

☐ AUTOMOBILE—Loans are made quickly—we pay your parking check in the Forsyth Building Garage while you come to our bank.

☐ FURNITURE—Loans are made on household furniture and you can even phone us to come to your house for your application instead of you coming to the bank.

☐ STOCKS-BONDS—Provide ready security for loans and terms are most desirable.

☐ DIAMONDS—And other stones and jewels of value are good security for loans.

☐ COMBINATION—Loans are made on a variety of collateral when you want a large amount and any one type of your security is insufficient to secure the loan. For instance, you might put up an automobile plus an endorsement if the car is a model worth less than the amount you need.

☐ OTHER TYPES of loans are made on most anything of value.

Terms are extended as long as 2 1/2 years if you need that long. Loans can be renewed, increased, or restructured when you need further accommodation.

Joe Brown Junior High Struts Its Stuff With Eye on Band Festival

Musically inclined students at the Joe Brown Junior High school are strutting their stuff here to kill two birds with one stone. First, they are practicing difficult maneuvers in preparation for The Constitution-sponsored Fifth District Band Festival, at the city auditorium and Grant field April 21, and second, they are parading in West End to advertise the faculty's minstrel show to be given at the school auditorium April 13 and 14. The minstrel show will be presented each evening at 8 o'clock.

EASTER SERVICES HELD OVER WORLD

the dead of the Easter rebellion of 1916.

In Madrid, a special papal blessing on the end of the civil war was bestowed on open-air crowds over loudspeakers recently converted from war propaganda use.

In Jerusalem, heart of the Holy Land, churches were filled, but the celebration was shadowed by the presence of 20,000 British troops on guard against Arab-Jewish conflicts, and tenseness forced thousands of prospective pilgrims from Cyprus and Egypt to abandon their plans.

The international situation caused Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain to hurry to London from a rural week end, and a partial cabinet meeting was held.

In the United States, festivities were marked only by some inclement weather. Temperatures were around freezing with scattered snow, in much of the east and north-central sections; there were rains in the midwest and high winds in the southwest; the south was generally warm and bright.

Picturesque sunrise and later services were held throughout the nation—30,000 at the Hollywood Bowl, 16,000 at the Mormon tabernacle in Salt Lake City, old Moravian ceremonies at Hope, Ind., and other centers, 10,000 at Knights Templar services in Arlington National cemetery near Washington.

In New Mexico, services were held in Indian pueblos and Carlsbad caverns, followed by Indian crop and rain dances. Near Rochester, the 125 parishioners of the Ridgeland community church, which was burned last week, held their meeting in a ladder factory.

An estimated 250,000 persons promenaded the boardwalk in Atlantic City, N. J., and hundreds of thousands jammed Fifth Avenue in New York City for the informal "dress parade."

The nation's first family was separated for the holiday, President Roosevelt being in Warm Springs, Ga., and Mrs. Roosevelt at Hyde Park, N. Y. She will return to Washington for the capital's big Easter event, the egg-rolling on the White House lawn, today.

MORAVIANS HOLD SUNRISE SERVICE

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., April 9.—(AP)—For the 167th year Moravians gathered from far and near at the home church here today for an Easter sunrise service.

Beginning at 2 a. m. (E. S. T.) the Moravian band of 300 musicians divided into groups and toured Salem, the pride of the city, arousing the residents and visitors with chorals.

Promptly at 5:30, with the first streak of dawn in the sky, the Rt. Rev. J. Kenneth Pfohl, bishop of the southern province of the Moravian church, presided.

Couple Hangs Up Altitude Record In Wedding Rites

GATLINBURG, Tenn., April 9.—(AP)—Charles Ogile, 20, of Gatlinburg, and Mary Agnew, 18, of Baldwin, Miss., claim some sort of new altitude record.

They were married today atop a 40-foot observation tower mounted on Clingman's Dome, 6,682-foot peak in the Great Smoky mountains.

More than 100 persons climbed a half-mile path leading from the highway to the tower to witness the unique event but some were unable to negotiate a two-inch blanket of snow which glistened in an Easter Day sun.

The groom's mother was among those who didn't see the wedding. His father stayed at home, saying, "I didn't try to go, I'm too big." He weighs 230.

church, walked out of the church, and told the worshippers: "I believe in the one and only God, Father and Holy Ghost, who created all things by Jesus Christ, reconciling the world unto itself."

The multitude responded: "This I verily believe, this I most certainly believe."

Then began a quarter-mile march to "God's Acre," the Moravian graveyard, and a final passage of liturgy.

At intervals between the church and the graveyard the band sections took positions and played antiphonally.

Later, when the great crowd reached the graveyard for the last part of the rally, the band was reassembled and flooded the countryside with music.

After the ceremony was over, a sunny Easter Day had dawned. Police Chief Walt Anderson estimated the crowd of visitors here for the sunrise service at 50,000.

COULDN'T KEEP THIS UNDER HER HAT

Here's a tip to the ladies—if you have to wear your old spring hat again shake it out before donning it.

A Pittsfield (Mass.) woman failed to do that not long ago and had quite a shock. She wore it to church and friends noticed that her hands wandered to her head quite frequently during the service. Finally she took the hat off and a mouse scampered out and ran away.

ALLIED COMMANDS IN URGENT SESSION

information had been obtained to strengthen the belief that a serious war crisis could be expected before April 15.

Meanwhile, Italy continued to pour troops into Albania as Mussolini's forces camped along the borders of Yugoslavia and Greece.

An exchange telegraph dispatch from Istanbul said Rumania and Turkey signed an agreement to defend the security and independence of members of the Balkan entente.

The United Press, in a copy-righted dispatch from Bulgaria, said Balkan diplomats indicated that they fear Italy may pursue the advantages of occupation of Albania with a quick drive on Greece through Macedonia to Salonika.

There were unconfirmed rumors in diplomatic circles that Bulgaria and Yugoslavia, in response to German pressure, have agreed to join the axis powers if Italy-German adventure extends further into the Balkans.

If a further Italian advance into the Balkans is contemplated, it could come along any of eight roads from Albania leading into Greece and Yugoslavia.

Both of these countries are fearful that Mussolini may claim Albanian minorities living in Yugoslavia and Greece. The former Albanian government estimated that 900,000 Albanians live in Yugoslavia—almost as many as in Albania itself—and more than 50,000 live in northern Greece.

Although Italian sources reported the Albanian occupation completed, sources in Belgrade revealed the invasion is being stubbornly resisted by 10,000 to 12,000 armed Mohammedan mountaineers in the rough southern districts. Almost without leadership, the hardy woodsmen bitterly contested every inch of the rough terrain of their native soil. The fighting recalled the defeat of crack Austrian units during the World War by guerrilla fighters in the type now battling off the Italians.

Also reflected in the conferences held here and in Paris was the suggestion that Italy might attempt a swift slice through Macedonia to occupy the Greek port of Salonika, which would give the axis powers a base in the Aegean sea from which to thwart naval aid for Rumania through the Dardanelles and the Black sea.

The British and French sessions, which brought together the chiefs of the armed forces of each nation with cabinet leaders, formed the background for the following events:

1. Great Britain protested strongly the seizure of Albania by Italy, but was "assured" that the occupation was a "limited" affair, and that the vital interests of Britain, Yugoslavia and Greece were not involved.

2. King Zog, his wife, Queen Geraldine, and his new-born son continued flight across Greece and were expected to sail soon for another refuge abroad.

Pope Plus XII voiced a plea for peace in an eight-minute homily from St. Peter's. He did not name any nation or individual, but said there could be no peace "if solemnly sanctioned pacts and the plight of world" have lost their value.

Italy set up in Tirana a "temporary administrative committee composed of prominent Albanian officers and officials" to rule the newest steal of the modern Roman empire.

Establishment of the temporary government to rule under Italian tutelage was accomplished quickly by Italian Foreign Minister Count Ciano during a flying visit there of less than 24 hours.

Preparations were made to receive Premier Benito Mussolini in Tirana Monday or Tuesday. His triumphal appearance apparently will be a surprise to the populace. Details of his trip are being kept secret.

Authoritative opinion holds that the first important announcement regarding the status of Albania will be made when Mussolini speaks.

In Germany, Nazis continued their celebration of a two-day Easter holiday without, however, relaxing the bitter attacks against Great Britain which have characterized statements since the London government took its stand against further aggrandizement of the Reich at the expense of small governments. There were charges that Prime Minister Chamberlain knew that he could never protect Poland if he were endangered.

Poland herself for the present lay in the background of Nazi displeasure.

Chancellor Hitler in his Bavarian mountain retreat was observing the movements of Polish Foreign Minister Beck, who returned to Warsaw yesterday from here, before deciding how to counteract the Anglo-Polish mutual assistance pact if Poland permits it to be completed.

It appeared that the Fuehrer was giving Poland a chance to back down.

But here and in Paris the governments were preparing "for all eventualities."

The list of air, naval and army officials conferring with Daladier lent weight to such a thesis.

Gathered around the council table at the War Ministry were: General Maurice Gustave Gamelin, chief of general staff of national defenses; General Charles Colson, of the superior war council; General Jules Buehrer, chief of general staff of colonial forces; General Joseph Vuillemin, chief of the air force general staff; General Jules De Camp, Daladier's chief military assistant; Rear Admiral C. J. Bourrague, assistant chief of the naval general staff; and Rear Admiral M. A. Leluc.

Air Minister Guy La Chambre, Navy Minister Cesar Campinchi and Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet represented the cabinet.

Daladier hurried from the military meeting to a conference with Sir Eric Phipps, British ambassador to Paris. He was accompanied by Bonnet, who took part in the talks with Sir Eric and other representatives of France's diplomatic partner.

The subject of their 20-minute conversations was carefully guarded.

Chamberlain, returning from his vacation in Scotland, immediately entered into day-long conversations with Halifax and other high officials. Halifax in turn talked with the Greek ambassador, the French ambassador and, after a conference with the prime minister, entered a conference with Viscount Gort, chief of the imperial defense staff; Vice Admiral A. B. Cunningham, deputy naval chief of staff, and other members of the imperial defense committee.

Mrs. Nita Latham Law, sister of Mrs. W. F. Dykes and Thomas H. Latham, of Atlanta, died Friday at her home in Washington, friends here were notified yesterday. Death was caused by a heart attack following a case of influenza.

Also surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Carey H. Brown, of Rochester, N. Y.; a half-sister, Mrs. Louis Chappelle; two grandsons, Carey Brown Jr. and Alston Law Brown, and several nieces and nephews.

THIS MORNING

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES II.

"What is it I can turn to, lighting upon days like these?"

It is more and more apparent that a lot of Americans haven't real issue before the country that a lot of Americans haven't made sure of the most efficient administration of what has been done under the New Deal. It is an issue upon which the Republicans can make out a fine case for themselves. They rarely invent anything for the country, but they generally handle the new inventions better than the inventors—the Democrats—do.

One congressional investigation of the Works Progress Administration is not enough, it seems to us. Investigation should be continuous and automatic. If, as Senator Taft says and we believe, relief measures are going to be necessary for many years to come, the new federal business of disbursing money and jobs on a giant scale needs to be accepted as a possibly permanent business and made as businesslike, as non-political, as non-competitive-with-private-business, as conformant to economic law, and as subject to scrutiny, as human ingenuity can make it.

On July 2 next in Richmond the Spingarn gold medal will be awarded to Marian Anderson, the talented negro contralto. This medal, we read, is awarded annually "to the man or woman of African descent and American citizenship, who during the year shall have made the highest achievement in any field of human endeavor."

No promise of relief from this part of the New Deal in the Republican party, apparently. The

Zog and Queen May Make Home In United States

NEW YORK, April 9.—(AP)—King Zog and Queen Geraldine of Albania may come to America to live if their exile proves permanent, a close friend of the Queen said tonight.

Madame Maria de Landa-Torok, Hungarian novelist, said the royal couple, now in Greece, had planned for a long time to come here next fall, after the arrival of their child, who was born last week.

Twenty-three-year-old Queen Geraldine, the daughter of the late Count Julius Apponyi, of Hungary, and the former Gladys Virginia Stewart, of New York, was born and brought up in Hungary.

Madame de Landa-Torok, who has been here three months on a visit, met the Queen five years ago in Budapest, and the preliminary papers for Geraldine's marriage were signed at her home.

"She has always emphasized that she was half American," the novelist said, "and has always wanted to see this country. With her American connections, I think it is quite likely that they will decide to settle here."

King Zog's three sisters visited the United States last year.

SOUTHEASTERN FOUNDRIES, INC., ADDS LATEST EQUIPMENT

PERMANENT MOLD AND DIE CASTING IS AVAILABLE HERE

New Personnel Is Announced for Large Local Foundry Concern.

At a recent stockholders' meeting of Southeastern Foundries, Inc., in line with its program of expansion, several new men were added to its personnel. The list of officers is now as follows:

Q. R. Groover, president; J. H. Sanders, vice president; W. G. Groover, secretary-treasurer; F. C. Bond, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Gladys Groover, assistant treasurer.

Southeastern Foundries, Inc., is well known over the south. It is supplying castings to all sections of the southeast. It is doing bronze tablets and matchplate work in addition to its regular lines. Its officials declare it is prepared to do any type castings of non-ferrous metals, supplying to the trade a superior line of plumbers' ferrules and flanges.

In addition to their regular line of brass, bronze and aluminum castings, made from patterns in sand molds, the foundry concern announces a new department. It is now prepared to produce permanent mold and die castings in alloys of zinc, lead or aluminum base, or other soft metals. This is the first jobbing foundry in the south to undertake this class of work.

To supervise this department, Southeastern Foundries, Inc., has secured the services of Louis D. Foster, who has had 15 years' experience in casting work in some of the largest plants in the country. Familiar with the engineering and designing of equipment necessary for this type of product, Mr. Foster has planned and supervised the installation of the new department.

Many items formerly made by the old and slow method of sand molding are now being made on a speedier production basis by permanent mold and die casting. Among the many articles which can be advantageously produced by these methods are locks, handles, door pulls and knobs, hinges and other items of builders' hardware, electrical hardware, plumbing supplies, machine parts made ready to use without expensive finishing operations, advertising novelties of many kinds and uses, clock cases, metal signs and tablets, and many other items of similar nature.

In addition to the above it is planned to produce a full line of casted hardware to be supplied to manufacturers in the southeast. Designs and molds are now being prepared which will give to Southeastern Foundries, Inc., an outstanding line of quality products for manufacturers of wood or metallic casings.

The Southeastern Foundries, Inc., was organized two years ago. It is directed and operated by men of long experience in the foundry

But men—and boys—how about the hat you are going to wear every day for a while? Or how about that straw you bought late last year, or that Panama, that needs cleaning and reshaping? You needn't answer that question right now. Just take the hat to Roselle the Hatter, at 42 North Forsyth street. He will know exactly what it needs—know what you want.

You know, along after Easter one has to begin looking out for headwear for the summer. It makes no difference whether it is a man's, boy's, or lady's hat—it's all the same to Roselle. If they need cleaning or reshaping, or any work at all, his expert haters can make it look like a practically new hat. Take your straw or your Panama to him. It's much less expensive than buying a new one. Let him make it clean, snappy and shapely for you. And the same thing goes for the ladies, too. He will surprise you on the clever job he will do in cleaning, dyeing, or making over that old hat—straw or felt.

RALPH CANNON AUTO SERVICE OPENING TODAY

Well-Known Auto Service Man Now Located at 212 Spring Street, N. W.

After 29 years of Buick service, plus a wide experience with practically all makes of cars, as well as active motor service in France during the World War, J. Ralph Cannon, widely known auto service man, will have his formal opening of his new auto service station today. It is located at 212 Spring street, N. W., with branches on both Spring and Cain streets.

Mr. Cannon extends to the motoring public a cordial invitation to call at his new, well-equipped place, see how well prepared he is to take care of their motor needs, and note the conveniences and arrangements prepared for drivers, where they can drive into his place, with no posts to interfere with their driving, and where 10,000 feet of floor space is utilized in his big plant.

In his new plant, Mr. Cannon has installed every known piece of mechanism required for every type of service on a car. In fact, a car, however badly wrecked, can be hauled into his place and completely made over. He can provide every part or piece of an auto, from the smallest tail light bulb to the heaviest piece that enters into the making of a car. His new place is equipped for washing and polishing for lubrication, for any kind of repair on the electrical parts, lights, etc., wheel alignments, battery service—in fact, there is no repair or overhauling job on any make of car that Ralph Cannon and his expert force of mechanics cannot properly care for.

"Our engine-tuning department," says Mr. Cannon, "will save money and add much to the pleasure of driving a car."

In addition to the usual service and repair shop one can find at the new place a complete department to handle the painting of a car. This can be done, Cannon says, for as low as $15, but one successful in installing the lock shingle roofs throughout the city and section," said Mr. Hutchison, "and with this patented shingle and all the guarantees we provide for materials and workmanship, our business has increased 300 per cent for the first quarter of this year over the same period last year. I wonder sometimes why people will take a chance in having their roofs repaired, when they can get a roof at King's—one of these lock shingle roofs—and have at least three years' time payments, under the F.H.A. plan. This plan may soon expire. It may not be put into effect again. Under it no down payment is required. Of course, we have our own monthly payment plans that home-owners may accept, but whatever job we do, we guarantee it absolutely to workmanship and materials."

N. Baxter Maddox Is Appointed General Agent for Entire State

The Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Company, of Hartford, Conn., has announced, effective April 15, N. Baxter Maddox, local general agent of the company, will assume charge as general agent for the entire state of Georgia.

The company has been operating a general agency in Atlanta under the direction of Mr. Maddox serving north Georgia, and also a general agency in Macon handling the southern part of the state, and on April 15 these two offices will be combined. The company will maintain a district office to serve the policyholders of the Macon territory at 308 Second street, under the direction of John M. Selser as district agent, and a district office will also be maintained in Savannah in the Liberty bank building under the direction of James Holland.

Mr. Maddox states his agency has shown a 12 per cent increase in paid-for life insurance the first quarter of 1939 as compared to the same period of 1938, and states this is a continuous growth, since during the six years he has been general agent his agency has shown an increase each and every year over the preceding year.

Five representatives of the local agency will attend the company's national convention at Spring Lake, N. J., in June and will also enjoy a visit to the World's Fair and the home office. Those winning this award are: P. L. Smith, B. L. Hollis, Luther Guest, Jacob S. Brail, and James Holland. Mrs. Emalene Neilson will also attend the convention as a member of the quarter million dollar corps and is one of the leading women underwriters of the country. Luther Guest, in the Atlanta office, is the leading first year agent in the United States in the number of cases paid for, and will win the company's annual award for this achievement.

Mr. Maddox states the company's business has also shown a healthy increase as proven by the increase in insurance in force, which has reached over a billion dollars—the highest in the company's 93 years' existence.

The Connecticut Mutual also announces that in May it will conduct a training course for new agents at the home office in Hartford, and will be glad to make this available to two men who qualify from Atlanta.

The Baxter Maddox General Agency will continue to maintain its office in the Citizens and Southern bank building in Atlanta, and will continue to render the highest type life insurance service to its policyholders through the state.

DR. FRANK WARD, 52, DIES IN FITZGERALD

Illness Forced Physician To Retire Four Years Ago.

FITZGERALD, Ga., April 9.—(P)—Dr. Frank Ward, 52, widely known physician in this section who retired four years ago because of illness, died last night. Dr. Ward, a captain in the medical corps during the World War, is survived by his wife, two sons, Dr. Francis Ward, of Macon, and Professor Paul Ward, of Dublin; three sisters, Mrs. F. H. Hill, of Tifton; Miss Mary Ward, of Tifton; Mrs. C. W. Clicher, of Rocky Mount, and two brothers, George Ward, of Miami, Fla., and W. P. Ward, of Douglas, Ga.

Blind Teacher Presented Poem in Braille

Mrs. William C. Arnold, wife of the new southern territorial commander of the Salvation Army presents to J. J. Childs, well-known Braille teacher of Atlanta, a Braille transcription of one of her poems, "Easter Lily." Included in the Braille manuscript also is an article by Commissioner Arnold, "Go and Tell," and one by Colonel Richard F. Stretton, "It Is Finished." Mr. Childs was made the recipient of the booklet on a recent call at the army's territorial headquarters, when he welcomed the new southern leaders to Atlanta.

BUSINESS

Average Family With $2,116 Income

NEW YORK, April 9.—(P)—The average effective buying income of the average American family in 1938 was $2,116, the magazine "Sales Management" said today in its 10th annual survey of buying power.

The average individual American had approximately $492 to spend last year, it added.

The nation's total estimated total income for 1938, at $63,274,609,000, was about 12 per cent less than in 1937, but half again above the acute 1932 depression low of $41,000,000,000, the publication said.

New York was first among states with a family average of $3,089; Nevada was second with $2,777, and California third with $2,733. Other leading states were: Massachusetts, $2,673; Rhode Island, $2,601; New Jersey, $2,587; Wyoming, $2,584; Connecticut, $2,560; Minnesota, $2,440; Delaware, $2,369; Maryland, $2,362, and Washington, $2,359.

Of major cities, Des Moines was first with a per-family effective spending income of $3,778; followed by Washington, D. C., $3,767; Minneapolis, $3,700; New York city, $3,609, and Dallas, $3,584. Ten next principal cities of the first 15, in order, were: Houston, Davenport, St. Paul, St. Louis, Fort Worth, Kansas City, Miami, Tulsa, San Francisco and Boston.

Thirty major cities in all exceeded the $3,000 mark for per family effective spending incomes.

The average white family in the United States last year had $2,252, which was only $136 above the all-family average for the country, a fact of especial interest in southern states. The magazine reported.

Furniture Stores Note Profit

CHICAGO, April 9.—(P)—Large furniture stores showed a net profit equal to 84 cents for each $100 of net sales in 1938, Roscoe R. Rau, of Chicago, executive vice president of the National Retail Furniture Association, said today in a preview of the sixth annual report of the controllers' division of the association.

Medium-sized stores showed a profit of 32 cents per $100, Rau said.

U. S. Factories Up Their Pace

WASHINGTON, April 9.—(P)—The Commerce Department said today the total output of American factories in the first quarter of this year was second only to 1937 for similar months since 1930. In some instances the pace was even faster than in 1929—particularly for factory consumption of rubber and wool, hosiery shipments, and production of shoes, gasoline and cigarettes.

The favorable comparison, the department said, was made in spite of the fact that the rapid upturn in business which began last summer leveled temporarily into a "plateau."

Monopoly Probe Turns to Oil

WASHINGTON, April 9.—(P)—The monopoly committee announced today that it would investigate the gigantic oil business this summer, using a new type of procedure designed to let the industry tell its own story.

Senator O'Mahoney, Democrat, Wyoming, chairman of the committee, said that the study would make possible a "thorough-going" test of this procedure "as a means of developing objective testimony." He indicated that if it succeeded other industries would be investigated similarly.

As outlined by O'Mahoney, the procedure will afford the industry an opportunity to take the initiative in developing the information to be brought out in the hearings.

Answers will be sought, he said, particularly to these two questions:

"What is the exact relationship between the independent producer and the independent distributor upon the one hand and the major

CRIME

Marathon Figure Felled by Bullets

CHICAGO, April 9.—(P)—Charles Hayden, a marathon promoter, was shot and fatally wounded shortly after 4 a. m. today in typical gangland fashion outside a West Madison street ballroom housing his latest venture.

Police Captain Louis Klatzko said Hayden supplied details of the shooting a few minutes before he succumbed.

"I had left the ballroom after saying goodnight to the doorman," Klatzko said Hayden told him, "and was walking toward the club when a green sedan pulled up at the curb. It contained two or three men. One of them got out of the car and started walking toward me, and then started shooting. I don't know what it was—an attempted stickup or what."

DEATHS

Rites Are Held For 'Largest Scout'

DUBOIS, Pa., April 9.—(P)—Funeral services were held in the nearby coal mining town of Force today for Ired Spray Levensky, known as the "largest" Boy Scout in the United States. At the time of his death from influenza Thursday, Ired weighed 527 pounds.

Ired weighed only seven pounds at birth but a glandular disease stunted his growth to 85 pounds at the age of three years.

Sixteen-years-old, Ired was five feet eight inches tall and five feet eight inches around the waist. He was termed "largest Scout" when, soon after his twelfth birthday, he joined the Dubois council and ordered a uniform with a 54-inch waist. He then weighed just over 300 pounds. Council officials made inquiries and, as far as they could determine, Ired was heavier than any other boy in scouting.

In 1937, Ired entered high school and made the football squad. Last year he achieved the Eagle Scout rating.

Marion Anderson Sings in Capital

WASHINGTON, April 9.—(P)—Marion Anderson, singing star, sang a free concert today from the steps of Lincoln memorial to a crowd estimated by park police at more than 75,000.

The singer, wearing a mink coat against the sharp coolness of the sunny afternoon, stood a few feet below the Abraham Lincoln statue surrounded by notables, including a supreme court justice, two cabinet members and several senators.

Secretary of the Interior Ickes, introducing the singer, did not mention by name the Daughters of the American Revolution, which refused to permit her to sing in its auditorium—Constitution Hall. Associate Justice Hugo Black, of the supreme court, and Mrs. Black arrived as the artist was singing Schubert's "Ave Maria," but hid behind movie cameras until she finished, then hurried up the steps to their platform seats.

Francis Bushman Back to Old Love

CHICAGO, April 9.—(P)—Francis X. Bushman has stepped back on the legitimate stage.

He appeared last night to take the central role in Frederick Jackson's comedy, "The Bishop Misbehaves," presented under auspices of the Chicago Mummies, which seeks to bring about a renaissance of the legitimate theater. One critic, Cecil Smith, of the Chicago Tribune, commenting on the performance of the former star of the silent movies, said:

"With a good script to aid him, he discovered and mixed together in his characterization just the right proportions of fatuousness, shrewdness, high humor and ecclesiastical sanctimoniousness."

NATIONAL NEWS

CONGRESS

Seek Lindbergh's Neutrality Views

WASHINGTON, April 9.—(UP)—Apprehension over the mounting tension of the European situation tonight spurred a congressional committee to invite Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, now en route to the United States, to testify before it in connection with efforts to formulate an "ideal" neutrality policy in event of war.

The invitation was cable to Lindbergh, pioneer cross-Atlantic flier, now aboard the Aquitania two days out of Cherbourg, France, by Representative Sol Bloom, Democrat, New Mexico, acting chairman of a house foreign affairs subcommittee which is scheduled to open hearings tomorrow on proposed neutrality law changes.

Earlier, Senator George, Democrat, Georgia, a member of the senate foreign relations subcommittee conducting similar hearings, indicated his group also would extend an invitation to Lindbergh, who recently submitted a secret report to government officials on the menacing world superiority of Germany's Nazi air fighting forces.

In his cable to Lindbergh, Bloom said:

"In view of your great experience in aviation and the faith all of us have in your patriotism, the foreign affairs committee of the house of representatives, which will be holding hearings during the next two weeks on neutrality legislation, would like to have your appear and receive benefits of your views."

'Cash and Carry' Before May 1

WASHINGTON, April 9.—(P)—Administration leaders, fearful that war may break out at any time in Europe, will ask congress to re-enact the present "cash and carry" clause of the neutrality act before it expires May 1.

Chairman Pittman, Democrat, Nevada, of the senate foreign relations committee, who has warned that it would be dangerous to permit the clause to lapse, said this action would be proposed as a temporary gap, pending final determination of the controversial question of revising the neutrality act.

The "cash and carry" clause permits the President to proclaim a list of products, other than munitions, which belligerents may buy here only by paying cash and carrying them away themselves. Sale of munitions to belligerents automatically is banned as soon as the act is invoked.

Half a dozen proposals to change the law are pending. Pittman, with apparent administration backing, has proposed that munitions, as well as other products, be sold on the "cash and carry" basis to nations at war.

The suggested amendments have stirred so much controversy, however, that congressional leaders have abandoned hope of enacting any change before the present "cash and carry" clause expires May 1.

Whether to exert all his influence to expedite enactment of new neutrality legislation will be one of the major congressional problems facing President Roosevelt when he returns tomorrow from a vacation at Warm Springs, Ga.

Also before the chief executive will be the question of what to do about insistent demands of a militant farm bloc in the senate for a $400,000,000 increase in agriculture department appropriations. A senate appropriations subcommittee will open hearings on the farm appropriation tomorrow.

Informed senators said they thought there was little chance that the President would make any public statement on the $100,000,000 supplemental WPA appropriation pending in the senate.

Democratic leaders said they were confident this total would be approved in a vote set for 1:30 p. m. (Atlanta time) tomorrow, despite a demand from some senators for an additional $500,000,000. Mr. Roosevelt asked $150,000,000.

Wheeler Decries 'War Propaganda'

WASHINGTON, April 9.—(P)—Senator Wheeler, Democrat, Montana, said tonight "conflicting economic interests, not political idealism, is the source of the present international crisis."

Discussing foreign policy with Senator Pepper, Democrat, Florida, in a radio (MBS) broadcast, Wheeler asserted this country was being subjected to a tremendous propaganda campaign in behalf of the so-called democracies. He added:

"England and France are seeking not to preserve democracy, but rather to maintain their existing trade areas, their present territorial and their imperialistic empires."

Pepper declared that continuance of "violence, lawlessness, international brigandage and piracy" abroad would jeopardize this country's security.

Reserve Board Bares Conflict

WASHINGTON, April 9.—(P)—The Federal Reserve Board today said congress today that the nation's banking and monetary system was "weakened" by confusion of authority over its control, including a conflict of responsibilities between the Federal Reserve and the Treasury.

In a statement to the senate and house banking committees the board urged that congress determine the objectives by which the monetary and banking authorities shall be guided and the "character of governmental machinery that would be best calculated to carry out the purposes of congress in this important field."

The study, the board suggested, also should include "the factors that obstruct the flow of money through the channels of investment, production and distribution."

"Such a broad approach," it said, "would enable congress to consider other important problems of our economic system."

A hint that in advancing its suggestion at this time the board may have had in mind the possible need for emergency monetary action in the event of war abroad was seen by some analysts in the following assertion:

"Notwithstanding the inherent limitations upon the influence of monetary and credit action on economic conditions, the board is convinced of the importance of such action at certain times, and feels strongly the necessity of having the mechanism of monetary and banking control and supervision at all times in condition to function effectively in the public interest."

Is Swing Music Swinging on Out?

BY INSTITUTE OF PUBLIC OPINION.
NEW YORK, April 9.—In spite of the sounds you've been hearing on your radio, there are some important signs today that "swing" music has passed its peak of popularity with the American public and is beginning the inevitable decline.

This does not mean, however, that "swing" music has suddenly become unpopular.

In an excursion into popular tastes, a new American Institute of Public Opinion survey shows that a majority of persons still like the jitterbug rhythms that have been poured over the air for almost two years.

But two years is a long time for any dance fad, and the Institute's survey reveals that the non-swing-

LABOR

Rivalry Blamed In Coal Deadlock

PITTSBURGH, April 9.—(P)—A prominent operator said today negotiation of a new contract for the nation's bituminous coal miners had been prolonged by rivalry between the American Federation of Labor and the Congress for Industrial Organization.

At the same time another source said coal consuming industries would shortly begin to feel the pinch of reduced supplies.

The shutdown of the soft coal mines went into its second week today with representatives of the United Mine Workers and operators none too hopeful for quick settlement of the contract difficulties.

The operator, who asked that his name be withheld, said rivalry between the Progressive Miners' Union (AFU) and the UMWA (CIO) had "wedged" producers in the middle.

FARM

British Decline Cotton Offer

MANCHESTER, England, April 9.—(P)—Secret negotiations involving 750,000 bales of American cotton valued at between $30,000,000 and $35,000,000 were disclosed today to have been unsuccessful.

A Lancashire cotton corporation recently was offered the cotton through a finance house in a deal covering a period of three years and on terms which an official of the corporation said were advantageous.

The cotton was to have been delivered from time to time.

"While the offer was attractive on the surface," the official said, "the corporation decided to turn it down."

"This action was taken in the best interests of the industry as a whole. Had we accepted the proposal, it would have upset the whole merchandising system in this country."

AVIATION

Laura Ingalls After New Record

NEW YORK, April 9.—(P)—Laura Ingalls, women's non-stop transcontinental flight record-holder, announced today she would attempt shortly a 5,000-mile flight in an effort to break the men's non-stop solo distance record.

"The take-off on the distance attempt will be from some point in the middle west," Miss Ingalls said just before leaving Roosevelt Field in her new transport plane on a test flight to California.

She would not say when the attempt would be made nor discuss her proposed destination.

The ship she will use on the distance flight is a Barkley-Grow transport powered by two 300-horsepower Pratt and Whitney engines. She planned to check on its fuel consumption on the California trip.

Montgomery's Name Missing From Schedule For Forthcoming Year

Are "B" Pictures Effort To Kill His Popularity?

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, April 9.—The name of Robert Montgomery is missing from the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production schedule for the forthcoming year. Is this the producers' answer to Bob's long and acrimonious fight with the powers-that-be for better working conditions for the movie underdog? Or can it be that his picture appeal is dying? There are those in the studio who would have you believe the latter. Personally, I think it's a lot of baloney. There is nothing wrong with Bob that a good "B" picture wouldn't cure. All of his recent pictures have been mediocre "B's," with the object, I am convinced, of forcing him out of pictures. Bob is still under long-term contract, so it would seem that his studio would sooner pay him to keep off the screen than give him the chance to make money for it by appearing in worthwhile movies.

By an ironic coincidence, Montgomery is now in Washington, actually testifying for the producers in the block booking bill, but his motive is not to bring more money to studio executives, but to help the extras and bit players, who he asserts would suffer if the Neely bill became law. I hereby nominate Mr. Montgomery as the most unselfish man in the movie industry.

Just before Jack Benny left for New York for sentencing on a jewel smuggling charge, he presented to the new bride of his gag man—Bill Morrow—a gold bracelet, studded with diamonds and rubies—bought locally. Dean J. Durbin, who was just the tiniest bit overweight in her last picture, "Three Smart Girls Grow Up," is now on a non-eating cream, non-chocolate, non-eating-between-meals diet. Joseph Von Sternberg is gallantly coming to the aid of the lady he brought to movie fame—Marlene Dietrich. The couple have formed a star-director combination and are currently offering themselves as a unit to major studios. Which reminds me, there is still a diamond date for new glamor-girl Hedy Lamarr's next picture. How about Hedy in a remake of Marlene's first picture—"Blue Angel"?

David Niven is fighting Boss Goldwyn for the right to keep all the money he gets for radio and possible personal appearances. At the moment, David and Sam share 50-50. Several jade pieces from the collection of the late Jean Harlow are for sale in a San Francisco store. A certain popular male star had better watch out. His girl friend of the past year is telling intimates of a breach of promise suit she intends to bring—unless the wedding bells ring soon. "Binnie Barnes played tennis with Myrna Loy and Arthur Hornblow, and later remarked, "It was just like a week end in the country." I wonder what she meant?

The Connie Bennett cosmetic business, which got off to a slow start, is, I am assured by the general manager, picking up at a rate to justify further expansion. I always did think that Miss Bennett was better at business than acting. The Earl of Warwick is finally reaching the point where he is getting doubtful about the materialization of a movie career. He is now planning a lecture tour for the fall. I understand his subject will be Anglo-American understanding and a friendship. Luise Rainer's six months' leave of absence from Metro has been extended to a year. She is now in London, where she will shortly appear in a play. Miss Rainer's rise and fall in pictures are the biggest mystery story produced by Hollywood.

That well-publicized photograph of Joan Crawford and Franchot Tone celebrating their expected divorce by dancing in a New York night club has done Joan more harm with her fans than all her recent mediocre pictures. It was on a par with that portrait of Tyrone Power posing with a captured burglar. Cecil B. De Mille himself put the diaper on an infant for a scene in "Union Pacific," with the words, "The baby is now prepared to meet the censors."

Season's Fashion Picture Calls For Plaid Decorations

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

With all the sudden seasonal concern about letting freedom ring, it is a great comfort to discover that certain of our gentler liberties aren't being threatened. We can still take our plaid where we find them. And that's more than the Scots could legally do up until 1782, when the law prohibiting the use of highland plaids was repealed.

Picturesque Heraldry. Of course, Scotch plaids had as much political significance in their heyday as have the swastika or the hammer and sickle today. Now tartan plaids merely stand as the picturesque heraldry of the world's tallest race of men. Paradoxically, it would be a short plump little Scotch Queen of England who is responsible for their revival in the fashion picture this season.

Actually, though, it never takes much of a push to bring plaids into style. Maybe because they have so much crisp youth about them. This spring, they're invading the field of home decorating. Not in the peasant domes of a few seasons back... not even in the boldly modern way they've been turning up in the contemporary rooms from year to year. It's the lady-like plaids that we're talking about, the genteel descendants of those fierce Scotch tartans.

TODAY'S CHARM TIP

There's naught of charm, ladies, in those high-crossed legs in public conveyances, nor in tripping people with a dangling foot.

Barbara Bell's New Bolero Ensemble

Here's the newest and most charming way (1731-B) to make that favorite fashion—the beloved bolero ensemble! The dress alone is just as pretty and flattering as it can be, with a princess skirt that swirls with graceful width at the hem and diminishes to practically nothing at the waistline. The pointed revers at the neckline, the puffed sleeves, are so becoming to slim wearers—and those saucy little bows add a touch of provocative charm! The sleeveless bolero is cut very short, to make the waistline look even smaller, and finished with the new round edges. The best of it is, this design is so simple to make that even the inexperienced can easily do it. Wear it right now in flat crepe or silk print. Later on have it in linen or sharkskin.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1731-B is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Corresponding bust measurements 30, 32, 34, 36 and 38. Size 14 (32) requires 2-3 yards of 39-inch material for the ensemble, 2-1-3 yards ribbon for bows. Send for Barbara Bell Spring Pattern Book! Make your own smart new frocks for street, daytime and afternoon, with these simple, carefully planned designs! It's chic, it's easy, it's economical, to sew your own. Each pattern includes a step-by-step chart to guide beginners.

My Day: Cross-Country Flight Ahead of Schedule

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

NEW YORK CITY.—Not until just outside of Newark, N. J., yesterday afternoon, did we encounter any really bad weather. We had a slight flurry of snow Wednesday night, a beautiful sunrise as we came into Fargo, N. D., through a bed of fleecy clouds in fog, a slight snowstorm in Minneapolis, Minn., and good weather in Chicago. That is the lot of my trip so far as the weather goes!

In Minneapolis the press was particularly wide awake, it being fairly early in the morning. However, they did allow me to wash my face and hands and comb my hair before they asked me to be photographed.

First I stood with a very attractive young woman who carried a sweet youngster dressed entirely in blue. Then, they evidently thought contrast was what was needed, so, while they told me that the baby was taking her third trip by air, they discovered an elderly lady who was starting for Denver, Col., on her first trip, and they asked us to sit together for a photograph.

I was glad to do this, for she had a most interesting face. I discovered that she had been away from home for two years, evidently dividing her time with different members of her family. Her last visit had been in the south, after which she stopped with her sister in Minneapolis. Now she had made up her mind that traveling by air would be easier than a long train trip for a person who walked with a cane and had arthritis, and was going home to her daughter in Colorado, that way. Her sister leaned over us while we talked and said: "If I were taking this trip, I wouldn't have pressed on her did face looked as though that were true. There had lived an interesting life and was courageously taking whatever might be today's lot.

It does seem wonderful to cross the continent in an airplane and come in a few minutes ahead of schedule, which was what I did. Back at my apartment, in New York City, Miss Thompson and I spent a long evening over the mail.

My engagement book for the next few months has reached a point where I think I shall have to say "no" to any request, for I can't see how I can squeeze another thing into the days which lie ahead of me.

Most of my day today has been spent in trying on spring and summer clothes. I also saw, what was, I thought, a very large group of the press and photographers in June Hamilton Rhode's office, where I told the story of the wool material which the American wool growers are giving to the Queen of England, and the wool growers of the Dominion are giving to me. This reciprocal gift is made so that we may both meet in perfect comfort in sheer woolen dresses on the 8th of June in the city of Washington, D. C. I am hoping for a cool day!

(Signed letters pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not to disease, diagnosis or treatment, are invited. Dr. Brady if a stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Letters should be brief and written in ink. Only the large number of letters received only a few can be answered. No return can be made to queries not conforming to instructions. Address Dr. William Brady, The Atlanta Constitution.)

Formula for Smoker's Lip. Have found your advice excellent—quinine for lip prevention, wheat germ for vite, etc., and wonder if you have a formula to relieve lip irritation caused by excessive smoking. (C. V. T.)

Answer—Yes. Stop smoking. Or shall you fool along until you can no longer hope for a cure? I have a monograph on Tobacco Habit—send stamped envelope bearing your address and ask for it. Maybe it will help you break the habit.

Backward, Turn Backward. One of your correspondents reported that some ration you had recommended stopped hair from turning gray. I know you made no such claim, but just the same I'd like to have the information. (Mrs. M. G.)

Answer—The Iodine Ration. Then, too, perhaps the anti-gray hair factor in vitamin B complex will do no harm. Send stamped envelope bearing your address and ask for advice on Care of the Hair, Iodine Ration, Vitamin B Complex.

Changed Person. Particularly has your suggestion of calcium and vitamin D made me into a changed person. For over a year now I have been taking calcium and vitamin D as you suggested, my nose seems normal and my teeth have stopped decaying. (Mrs. E. J.)

Answer—Thank you. Your "chronic rhinitis" was probably in the nature of allergic rhinitis, hypersthetic rhinitis, rhinorrhea or perhaps sinus trouble. High calcium diet, calcium feeding, increased intake of sunshine vitamin D are generally advisable for such trouble as for hay fever, asthma, periodic sick headache (migraine), recurring hives, giant hives, bronchial asthma, tetany (in adults leg cramps at night), and various allergic states. Send stamped (3c) envelope bearing your address and ask for monograph "Calcium Feeding" and "Vitamins Everybody Needs." Do not send a clipping.

What to Do Till the Doctor Comes. The very day after we received "The Medicine Cupboard" we had occasion to use advice in it—our 4-year-old son choked on a button. We held him up by the feet and thumped his spine between the shoulders, and in a moment he coughed out the button and was all right. Our gratitude. (Mrs. E. A. C.)

Answer—Copy of "The Medicine Cupboard" with family formula will be mailed on request if you inclose 25 cents coin and stamped envelope (standard size) bearing your address.

Spina Bifida. What is spina bifida? Is it the fault of either parent or of an ancestor farther back? It is ever completely cured? Why must one wait five or ten years for something to develop, before attempting an operation? (Mrs. I. B.)

Answer—It is an arrested development of the spine, comparable with clubfoot, cleft palate or hare-lip, and like these other congenital conditions, not due to any fault in parent or ancestor; just a thing that may happen in any family. If the opening in the spine and the bulging through the opening is not too large early operation may greatly improve the condition. If there is any paralysis operation is useless. Generally soft rubber or rubber sponge pads are kept upon the bulging place, by means of elastic bandage or binder, for many months to see whether at-

Streamlining Becomes Tidal Wave

By Ida Jean Kain.

If you are stout you can't be stylish, and the fashion for streamlines is turning into a regular tidal wave!

Excess pounds are aging and we are never going back to the comfortable old idea that weight should be added with the birthdays. Besides, normal weight is healthy—it feels better than it looks! Even the doctors are on the side of streamlines and a good percentage of the bulletins from scientific research laboratories have to do with weight control.

With all the scientific help at your disposal, you no longer have the slightest excuse for a cumbersome, overweight figure. A few years ago, it is true, reducing got a bad name when the movie stars risked their lives on dangerous diets. But today reducing is on a sound basis and you should be able to build up your health as you take off pounds after pounds.

One of the latest products of the laboratories is the combination of vitamin and mineral perles which give as much protection as a gallon of milk, five pounds of whole wheat bread and a pound of lettuce, and without contributing any calories. The perles do not contain calories!

Concentrates have been used with great success in obesity clinics. Their addition to the diet not only increased the reducer's feeling of well being, but, astonishingly enough, when the concentrates were used the reducer did not experience the usual hunger pangs even on a very low calorie diet.

If concentrates are used to such advantage in hospital menus, they are more likely to be actually needed as a supplement to the average reducer's diet. You will appreciate the vital role played by the supplements when you realize that fat is only stored calories. It is only by saving on the fat that you can reduce, but you have no effective reserve of the protective vitamins and minerals on which to draw. While you are reducing, you must have an adequate intake of these elements or your health and appearance will suffer.

Every reducing diet is restricted in dairy products and, therefore, low in vitamin A. Whole grain bread and cereals are limited and the reducing diet is apt to be dangerously low in vitamin B1. It is far better to have an abundant rather than just an adequate intake of vitamin C. Since the average person spends so much time indoors, there is need for additional vitamin D. As for the minerals—calcium, iron and phosphorus—reducing for them is not diminished on the low calorie diet and they must be supplied daily in normal amounts.

The vitamin and mineral perles are balanced to furnish the entire list of the protective elements in which the average reducer diet may easily be deficient.

Today the best reducing diets are high in protein to speed up the metabolism, to provide material for repair and to afford satiety. They are balanced to supply the protective elements in the form of food, and are supplemented with concentrates to bring the intake of the protective elements up to normal.

New After-Bath Cologne Is Vague Suggestion of Subtle Loveliness

By Lillian Mae.

There is an entirely new product in the field of after-bath perfumes—one which is destined to be bright at the head of the line during this spring and summer. The aroma is difficult to describe, for it is merely a vague suggestion of subtle loveliness. Just when you feel that you have captured the secret, it eludes you again. But it has a tantalizing come-on that won't let you forget it or cease to grasp at its secret depth—baffling, but charming.

It's originally an English product, but American women will respond to its brisk buoyancy and glory in the satisfaction of using a scent that exudes discreet good taste.

It isn't quite a true lavender odor—that is, lavender as we usually think of it—though it is withal, unmistakably lavender. You'll enjoy it not only as an after-bath cologne, but as a refreshing pick-up when you are fatigued and haven't time for a bath. It can be used generously for a body sponging, without any fear of the amount used making you conspicuously perfumed, though the haunting fragrance will linger pleasantly and the clean, spicy odor will promote a sense of well-being for many hours.

The bottle itself is clearly modern—styled with a dash that assures popularity—designed to fit the hand and assure a firm grasp. The name of the new cologne and the stores at which it may be purchased may be obtained by phoning me, or writing me, if you do not live in the city, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD: My next door neighbor's children are very much on my mind though I dare not tell her so. She's in business while they are being brought up by a servant. When I remember all the loving care my little ones had, it grieves me to see these children separated from their mother except at meal and bed time. The family lives well and from what I am able to observe the luxuries which the mother's salary provides mean less to the children than having her at home with them would mean. The father has a good position and while his salary wouldn't buy oriental rugs which are now on their floors, it would support them. What do you think of a case like this?

NEIGHBOR.

ANSWER: I think it's dangerous business for any of us to pass on the domestic and economic problems of the family next door; just as every heart knoweth its own bitterness, every family has its peculiar problems which they should be permitted to work out as seems best to them. And so long as they pay their debts they are entitled to privacy.

Generally speaking, it's true that the average woman hasn't physical stamina to run her home, rear her brood and help her husband finance the family. Yet there are capable women who manage to do all three. I can think of one who was in business during the first 20 years of her married life, brought up two lovely daughters (with the help of a trusted servant) gave them good educations and saw them safely married.

The proof that she did the job to the queen's taste lies on either side of her where the two daughters have built homes on lots which she and her husband gave them. The young people are paying for their houses, living within their incomes and rearing their little families. Some of the neighbors who criticized that woman haven't had such signal success with their darlings.

Nowadays we are told that too much love and attention is as ruinous to tiny tots as too little. Perhaps these modern mothers who are dividing time between home and office are giving their children a squarer deal than the old fashioned mothers who hovered over and smothered their darlings with affection. Who knows?

This much we know: a woman will sometimes take advice from her family physician, her priest or minister as to how she should order her life but she's not brooking any criticism or interference from neighbors and

Flattering Neckline By Lillian Mae

Keep in step with fashion by wearing this new Lillian Mae style.

"I love the scalloped effect at your waistline," friends will say, and indeed they'll be right in admiring this smart higher-waist feature. Then too, both versions of the neckline simply breathe that new love of prettiness now animating the fashion world! Instead of the ever-so-flattering, frill-trimmed collar, you may have the delightful collarless neck with ruching and a slip-through bow. Shirrings and gathers in the soft bodice, and gores in the skirt, are further guarantees of glamour. A spaced print or summery monotones are best materials for this very-easy-to-use pattern!

Pattern 4091 is available in misses' and women's sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30 and 32. Size 16 takes 3-5-8 yards of 39-inch fabric and 1-5-8 yards of 39-inch fabric and 1-5-8 yards of 39-inch fabric. Send fifteen cents (15c) in coins for this Lillian Mae pattern. Do not send stamps. WUTHERING HEIGHTS

By EMILY BRONTE

INSTALLMENT XVIII

"I look hold of Linton's hands and tried to pull him away; but he shrieked so shockingly that I dared not proceed. At last his cries were choked by a dreadful fit of coughing; blood gushed from his mouth and he fell on the ground. I ran into the yard, sick with terror, and called for Zillah as loud as I could. Dragging her in, I looking about for Linton. Earnshaw had come out to examine the mischief he had caused, and he was then conveying the poor thing upstairs. Zillah and I ascended after him; but he stopped me at the top of the steps and said I shouldn't go in: I must go home. I exclaimed that he had killed Linton and I would enter. But at length they compelled me to depart, and when I had gone some hundred yards off the premises, Heathcliff suddenly issued from the shadow of the roadside and checked Minny and took hold of me.

"Miss Catherine, I'm ill grieved," he began, "but it's rather too bad—"

"I gave him a cut with my whip. He let go, thudding one of his horrid curses, and I galloped home more than half out of my senses.

"I didn't bid you good night that evening and I didn't go to Wuthering Heights the next; I wished to go exceedingly; but I was strangely excited, and dreaded to hear that Linton was dead; sometimes, and sometimes shuddering at the thought of encountering Hareton. But it was so miserable going to bed and getting up and never hearing anything about Linton that my resolution melted into air before it was properly formed. It appeared wrong to take the journey now; now it seemed wrong to refrain. I was forced to pass the front windows to get to the court: it was no use trying to conceal my presence.

"Young master is in the house," said Zillah, as she saw me making for the parlour. I went in; Earnshaw was there also, but he quit the room directly. Linton sat in the great arm-chair half asleep; walking up to the fire, I began in a serious tone, partly meaning it to be true:

"As you don't like me, Linton, and as you think I come on purpose to hurt you, and pretend that I do so every time, this is our last meeting: let us say good-bye." "Sit down and take your seat off, Catherine," he said. "You are so much happier than I am, you ought to be better. Only, if you say good-bye, do me this justice: believe that if I might be as sweet and as kind and as good as you are, I would be; as willingly and more so, than as happy and as healthy. And believe that your kindness has made me love you deeper than if I deserved your love; and though I couldn't, and cannot help showing my nature to you, I regret it and repent it; and shall regret and repent it till I die."

"I felt he spoke the truth; and I felt I must forgive him; but he'll never let his friends be at ease, and he'll never be at ease himself."

"Now, Ellen, you have heard all. I can't be prevented from going to Wuthering Heights, except by inflicting misery on two people; whereas, if you'll only not tell papa, my going need disturb the tranquillity of none. You'll not tell, will you? It will be very heartless if you do."

"I thought it over aloud, in my master's presence; walking straight from her room to his, and relating the whole story. Mr. Linton was alarmed and distressed, more than he would acknowledge to me. In the morning, Catherine learnt my betrayal of her confidence, and she learnt also that her secret visits were to end. In vain she wept and writhed against the interdiction, and implored her father to have pity on Linton: all she got to comfort her was a promise that he would write and give him leave to come to the Grange when he pleased; but explaining that he must no longer expect to see Catherine at Wuthering Heights. Perhaps, had he been aware of his nephew's disposition and state of health, he would have seen fit to withhold even that slight consolation.

Catherine was obedient to her father's commands. Her affection for him was still the chief sentiment in her heart. He said to me a few days afterwards: "I wish my nephew would write, Ellen, or call. Tell me, sincerely, what you think of him: is he changed for the better, or is there a prospect of improvement, as he grows a man?"

"He's very delicate, sir," I replied, "and scarcely likely to reach manhood; but this I can say, he does not resemble his father. However, master, you'll have plenty of time to get acquainted with him and see whether he would suit her: it wants four years and more to his being of age."

Edgar, looking and walking to the window, looked out towards Gimmerton Kirk.

"I've prayed often," he half soliloquized, "for the approach of what is coming; and now I begin to shrink and fear it. I'd not care one moment for Linton being Heathcliff's son, but should Linton be unworthy—only a feeble tool to his father—I cannot abandon her to him."

Spring advanced; yet my master gathered no real strength. He wrote again to Linton, expressing his great desire to see him; and he heard that Linton was presentable. I've no doubt his father would have permitted him to come. As it was, being instructed, he returned an answer: "I do not ask that she may visit here; but am I never to see her because my father forbids me to go to her home, and you forbid her to come to mine? We have done nothing to deserve this separation; and you are not angry with me; you have no reason to dislike me, you allow yourself. Dear uncle! send me a kind note, tomorrow, to leave to join you anywhere you please, except at Thrushcross Grange."

Edgar, though he felt for the boy, could not consent to grant his request; because he could not accompany Catherine. Though he had set aside yearly a portion of his income for my young lady's fortune, he had a natural desire that she might retain—or at least return in a short time to—the house of her ancestors; and he did not wish her only prospect of doing that to be with him; he had no idea that the latter was failing almost as fast as himself; nor had any one, I believe, no doctor visited the Heights, and no one saw us. I could not picture a father treating a dying child as tyrannically and wickedly as I afterwards learned Heathcliff had treated him, to compel this apparent eagerness: his efforts redoubling the more immediately his avaricious and unfeeling plans were threatened with defeat by death.

Summer was already past its prime, when Edgar reluctantly yielded his assent to their entreaties, and Catherine and I set out on our first ride to join her cousin.

When we reached him, and that was scarcely a quarter of a mile from his own door, we were forced to dismount, and leave ours to graze. He lay on the heath, awaiting our approach, and did not rise until we came within a few yards. Then he walked so feebly, and looked so pale, that I immediately exclaimed:

"Why, Master Heathcliff, you are not fit for enjoying a ramble, this morning. How ill you do look!"

Catherine surveyed him with grief and astonishment: she changed the ejaculation of joy on her lips, to one of alarm; and the congratulation on their long-postponed meeting, to an anxious inquiry, whether he were worse than usual?

"No—better—better!" he cried, trembling and retaining her hand as if he needed its support, while his large blue eyes wandered timidly over her; the hollowness round them transforming to haggard wildness the languid expression they once possessed.

Cathy sat down and he reclined beside her while she made an effort at cheerfulness.

Linton did not appear to remember what she talked of; and he had evidently great difficulty in sustaining any kind of conversation. His lack of interest in the subjects she started, and his equal incapacity to contribute to her entertainment, were so obvious that she could not conceal her disappointment. An indefinite alteration had come over his whole person and manner. The pettishness that might be ascribed to fondness had yielded to a listless apathy; and Cathy made no scruple of proposing, presently, to depart. That proposal, unexpectedly, roused Linton from his lethargy, and threw him into a strange state of agitation.

"Stay to rest yourself," he said. "And when you do go—and if you meet my father, don't lead him to suppose that I've been extremely silent and stupid; don't look sad and downcast, as you are doing—he'll be angry."

"I care nothing for his anger," exclaimed Cathy, imagining she would be its object.

"But I do," said her cousin, smothering. "Don't provoke him against me, Catherine, for he is very hard."

"Is he severe to you, Master Heathcliff?" I inquired.

Linton looked at me but did not answer; and after keeping her seat by his side another 10 minutes, during which his head fell drowsily on his breast, he uttered nothing except suppressed moans of exhaustion or pain.

"Is it half-an-hour yet, Ellen?" Cathy whispered in my ear at last. "I can't tell why we should stay. I liked him better than I do his present curious mood."

Linton stirred from his brief slumber in bewildered terror and asked if anyone had called his name.

"I thought I heard my father," he gasped, glancing up to the twinkling sun above us. "You are sure nobody spoke?"

"Quite sure," replied his cousin. "Are you truly stronger, Linton, than when we separated in winter? If you are, I'm certain one thing is not stronger—your regard for me."

The tears came from Linton's eyes as he answered: "Yes, yes, I am!" And still under the spell of the imaginary voice, his gaze wandered up and down to detect its owner. Cathy rose.

"Today we must part," she said. "And I won't conceal that I have been sadly disappointed with our meeting."

"Hush," murmured Linton: "for God's sake, hush! He's coming." And he clung to Catherine's arm, striving to detain her; but at that announcement she hastily disengaged herself, and whistled to Minny, who obeyed her like a dog. "I'll be here next Thursday," she cried, springing to the saddle. "Good-bye. Quick, Ellen!"

And so we left him, scarcely conscious of our departure, so absorbed was he in anticipating his father's approach.

Before we reached home, Catherine's displeasure softened into a perplexed sensation of pity and regret.

My master requested an account of our going, but I threw little light on his inquiries, for I hardly knew what to hide and what to reveal.

Seven days glided away, every one marking its course by the henceforth rapid alteration of Edgar Linton's state. Catherine had the heart to mention her ride when Thursday came around; I mentioned it for her and obtained permission to order her out of door for the library, where her father stopped a short time daily—the brief period during which he sat up—and his chamber, had become her whole world.

TARZAN AND THE FIRES OF TOHR No. 37

Tarzan did not like the complexion of the situation. He and his friends were hopeless captives of the yellow giants, and Mungo, their chief, had spoken ominously of an interview with the mysterious Ahn, in whose hands apparently the fate of the prisoners rested.

And now Mungo demanded: "Give me the fire-sticks." "Huh?" Perry bristled. "I ain't giving my rifle to no savage." "You no give, Mungo take!" the giant growled. The fighting Irishman turned to Tarzan. "Let's give 'em a battle. Say the word and I'll let 'em have it!"

Tarzan's iron muscles quivered. He, too, was aching to make a fighting break for freedom, but his better judgment checked his impulse. "Probably we should all be killed," he said grimly. "That is, all of us except Jané. Then what would become of her?"

"Right!" Perry answered gloomily. "We've got to stay alive as long as we can to protect her, but the minute they lay hands on her, Perry O'Rourke starts fighting." "You have no weapons now," D'Arnel reminded him. "Begorra, I've got my two hands," Perry replied.
